LANSING (AP) — Western Michigan and Gov. George Romney's administration each have acquired a new voice on the vital House Ways and Means Committee as the result of a reshuffling of committee assignments.

Rep. William Doorn, R - Grand Rapids, Wednesday was named to the appropriating committee to replace Rep. Rollo Conlin, R-Tipton, who had refused to serve after being ousted from his long-time post as chairman of the General Taxation Committee.

In a game of musical chairs made necessary by Conlin's refusal, Doorn was removed from five committees, Conlin added to four and four other lawmakers given new assignments.

House Speaker Allison Green said Doorn was picked—although he is only a second-term legislator—to provide Western Michigan with some long-sought representation on the Ways and Means Committee.

"It's been our feeling for a long time that certain areas, such as Oakland County and the Kent County area, should have some representation on the committee," he said.

Rep. Lloyd Anderson, R-Pontiac, was added to the committee in the original assignments last month, to fill Oakland County's demand.

The 12 - member committee is headed by Rep. Arnell Engstrom, R-Traverse City, and has three Wayne County Democrats, another from the Upper Peninsula, and Republicans from Jackson, Ypsilanti, Kalamazoo, Lansing, Delton and Copeland among its members.

"This lineup gave nearly every part of Michigan except the area around Grand Rapids a voice on the committee," said Green. "That's the reason for the selection."

Doorn, a 62-year-old investment broker who was born in the Netherlands, described himself as a backer of Gov. Romney "all the way."

Patrolmen Back On Beats After Livonia Robbery

LIVONIA (AP) — Police Chief James N. Jordan has re-instated two patrolmen who were suspended after a lone gunman robbed a Bank of Livonia branch of $153,000 Jan. 30.

The police chief notified Patrolman Archie Hewitt, 36, Wednesday he will lose seven days pay and 15 days leave.

Hewitt's scout car partner, Patrolman Charles Nix, 30, was notified he will be reinstated without loss of pay or leave time.

The suspensions followed a bank messenger's charge that the two officers fled out the front door of the bank as the gunman escaped through the rear door with his shopping bag filled with the greatest amount of loot ever taken in a Michigan bank robbery.

Pictures Refute Story Of Soviet Buildup In Cuba

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration has flashed across the nation's television screens an unprecedented display of intelligence data to support its stand that Cuba is free of Soviet offensive weapons.

The report to the nation late Wednesday had a double purpose: to reassure the people and to squeeze the steam out of a boiling political controversy over Cuba's armed might.

But despite Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's statement that he believes beyond any reasonable doubt that all offensive weapons have been removed from Cuba, Sen. Kenneth B. Keating seemed in no mood to let up.

Keating, a New York Republican who has been making charges since last August about Cuba's military might, said none of his statements had been disputed by McNamara in the television report which featured an intelligence expert and many reconnaissance photographs.

Thorough Account Given
Many of the before-and-after photographs of missile sites and shots of Soviet ships at sea with missiles and crated IL28 bombers aboard had been made public before, during last fall's crisis.

But never before had the American people been given such a thorough account of how the United States detected the Soviet missile bases and rode herd at long range on departure of the missiles and bombers virtually every step of the way.

The administration's aim obviously was to impress the American people with the ability of U.S. aerial cameras and intelligence experts to ferret out whatever military gear the Communists try to hide.

In another move Wednesday, Kennedy ordered into effect penalties against foreign shipowners carrying cargo to Cuba.

With White House direction, officials mounted a massive two-way counterattack against those who have been claiming there is a growing threat in Cuba.

Before the televised report, Central Intelligence Agency chief John A. McCone went before a Senate Armed Services subcommittee.

No Hidden Missiles
"We are convinced beyond reasonable doubt that all offensive missiles and bombers known to be in Cuba" have been pulled out, McCone said.

McNamara used almost identical words when he went before the television cameras.

The Pentagon chief went even further, in an attempt to knock down persistent reports, mainly from Cuban refugee sources, that the Soviets are hiding missiles in caves, out of sight of prying aerial cameras.

"I am satisfied that there are no major elements of offensive weapons systems in the caves of Cuba," McNamara said.

He reported for the first time that recent reconnaissance has revealed that certain equipment of Soviet combat forces, gear associated with battlefield-type rockets, "has also started to be moved out of the island back to the Soviet Union."

McNamara acknowledged there still are about 17,000 Soviets in Cuba, including about 5,000 men in four motorized, tank-equipped task forces.

But he discounted the possibility that they could move any of their heavy military hardware against any other Latin-American countries. The Soviets and Cubans don't have the ships to do this, he said.

Bomb Load Limited
As for fears that the more than 100 Soviet MIGs could be used in a nuclear bombing strike against the United States, McNamara said they are not adapted for that mission now. If they were fitted to carry a maximum bomb load, the defense secretary said, their range would be so limited they

Laborites Have 3-Way Contest For New Leader

LONDON (AP)—Britain's opposition Labor party faced the prospect of an inconclusive first ballot today in the three-man race for a new leader whose chief task will be to preserve party unity.

The man finally chosen could well be Britain's next prime minister if he can hold the party's opposing factions together. But observers doubted that the party had united behind one man and picked a leader on the first ballot.

Harold Wilson, economist and Labor's foreign affairs expert, and George Brown, the present acting leader, were regarded as neck and neck favorites for the job. Political commentators gave Wilson a slight edge. The third candidate, fiscal expert James Callaghan, was considered a dark horse.

The 249 Laborites in the House of Commons have been casting secret ballots for a week for a new leader to succeed the late Hugh Gaitskell. The ballot box will be opened tonight and the votes counted.

If the first ballot gives none of the candidates a majority, the man with the fewest votes is eliminated and the remaining two go into a new contest.

Gaitskell during his seven years as leader welded the party together on the two big issues that threatened to split it in two—unilateral disarmament and further nationalization. His death Jan. 18 raised speculation that the old disputes might break out again.

The Conservative government of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan has a majority of 100 in the House of Commons. Macmillan can pick the time for the general election which must be held by October, 1964. The leader of the party winning a majority in the House of Commons automatically becomes prime minister.

Ice Jams Cause Montana Floods

By The Associated Press
Cloudy and wet weather covered broad areas in the eastern half of the nation and in parts of the Pacific Northwest today.

Temperatures varied little from Wednesday, with fairly mild weather in most of the nation. The coolest spots were from the northern Midwest to northern New England, but no subzero cold was reported.

The Atlantic storm which pounded the Southeast coast for the past several days appeared tapering off as it moved northward. It was located off the North Carolina-Virginia coast. Rains diminished over the Carolina coastal area and ended in other parts of the Southeast.

Light snow fell in the Upper Mississippi Valley and North Atlantic coastal sections. Snow and snow mixed with rain pelted areas in the Middle Mississippi Valley. Rain and drizzle sprinkled the central Atlantic coastal sections. Drizzle and fog dampened western sections of Washington. Heaviest snow reported was more than four inches in Augusta, Maine.

Rapidly melting snow and the forming of huge ice jams along the Yellowstone and Missouri rivers threatened floods in Montana. There were three ice jams in the Yellowstone, above Custer in southeastern Montana, with the river 15 to 20 feet over its banks. Ice jammed the Missouri near Townsend, causing some flooding in that central Montana town. Other jams on the Yellowstone and smaller streams threatened a few bridges and farming areas. Trains of the Milwaukee Road were rerouted over the Northern Pacific tracks from Deer Lodge to Missoula, around 200 feet of damaged roadbed and a threatened bridge washout in the Clinton area.

Flooding eased in interior sections of the Northwest. Huge ice packs in Idaho's Clearwater and Coeur d'Alene rivers started breaking up after dynamite blew out channels. Lowlands were still under water and some roads closed. Flood conditions in Odesa, Wash., also eased.

Douglas Godfrey

Boy Sniper May Be Tried As Adult

PONTIAC (AP)—Douglas Godfrey, 15, was confined in the Oakland County Children's Center today while authorities sought to determine whether he should be tried as an adult for the sniper slaying of his mother.

Prosecutor George Taylor, who has drawn up a first degree murder warrant, asked Probate Court Wednesday to turn the youth over to Circuit Court for trial as an adult.

Taylor said the youth admitted he killed his mother, Mrs. Mary Godfrey, 38, at their suburban Bloomfield Township home "because she tried to find excuses to keep me home." Mrs. Godfrey was shot the night of Jan. 25 by a .22 pistol bullet fired through a window.

The prosecutor told Probate Judge Donald Adams he believes the youth "is of sufficient maturity to have criminal intent, and, in addition, due to his outstanding intelligence and educational background, was well able to be aware of the consequences of his deed." Godfrey has a 140 I.Q.

Adams put off a decision on jurisdiction and appointed Wallace C. Crane, senior Oakland County

Child Welfare worker, and John McBride, clinical psychologist for the court, to make a study of Godfrey. They will report at another hearing set for next Wednesday.

If Probate Court retains jurisdiction, Godfrey could be committed to a state mental hospital, referred to a private child welfare agency, or held in the children's center as a juvenile offender.

Adams said, "There will be a final resolution of this case within a month. Meanwhile, the case will be handled like any other involving a juvenile, and the boy will be treated like any other youngster."

Name Negaunee Lawyer Judge

LANSING (AP) — Gov. George Romney appointed a Democratic banking commissioner and a Republican Circuit Judge Wednesday. Renamed as banking commissioner was Charles Slay, 45, of Detroit. The governor also named Negaunee attorney Bernard Davison, 50, Circuit judge for the 25th Judicial District (Marquette and Delta Counties). Davison will fill a vacancy created by the death last month of Judge Carroll Rushton. He is a former prosecuting attorney for Marquette County.

Court Declares Racial Housing 'Rule 9' Invalid

LANSING (AP) — Michigan's controversial "rule 9" barring real estate brokers from practicing racial or religious discrimination has been declared invalid by the State Supreme Court.

Shortly after the unanimous 7-0 decision was handed down by the High Court Wednesday, Gov. George Romney declared he would seek a law to eliminate discriminatory housing practices.

Disclosing that his office already is at work on proposed legislation to be introduced later this month, Romney said:

"I have insisted right along that Michigan should guarantee the equal rights of all citizens in the housing field, and I have repeatedly emphasized my personal belief in the principle of open occupancy."

O'Hara Abstains
In its ruling — with newly-elected Justice Michael O'Hara abstaining — the court made it clear that it was ruling on the authority of the Michigan Corporation and Securities Commission to issue an anti-discrimination edict under the present law.

"We have no other duty to perform than to construe the legislative will as we find it, without regard to our own views as to the wisdom or justice of the act," the court said, in an opinion written by Justice Theodore Souris.

The commission's controversial rule was prompted two years ago by the disclosure that real estate dealers in the s.w.a.n.k. Grosse Pointe suburbs of Detroit were using a "point system" to grade prospective buyers according to race, religion, national origin and ancestry.

Under the system, prospective customers were screened and rated on "swarthyness," "general standing," "race," and "degree to which prospect appears to have absorbed local customs."

The commission issued its "rule 9" to block the screening and announced that real estate brokers and salesmen could have their state licenses revoked if they practiced discrimination. It contended that the rule was permissible under its statutory power to handle "unfair dealings."

Two Opinions
Several real estate dealers challenged the commission's authority and filed the suit in Ingham County Circuit Court, which upheld their challenge. The commission then appealed to the Supreme Court.

But the Supreme Court upheld (Please Turn To Page 10, Col. 5)

Total Of Jobless Rises In Michigan

DETROIT (AP) — Unemployment in Michigan rose by 26,000 to a total of 184,000, or 6.4 per cent of the labor force, at mid-January, the Michigan Employment Security Commission said today in its monthly report.

At mid-December unemployment totaled 158,000, or 5.4 per cent of the labor force, according to the MESC. A rise of 17,000 from the prior month.

The labor force as of mid-January was 2,864,100 as compared to 2,899,600 as of mid-December.

Canadian Premier Told To Ease Up Anti-Americanism

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada's plunge into a new national election campaign was accompanied today by pressure on Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker to go easy on anti-Americanism. The pressure came from both inside and outside his Conservative party.

Diefenbaker, 67, went through the formalities Wednesday of dissolving Parliament and calling for new elections April 8 after his regime was unseated by two non-confidence votes in the House of Commons. The move did not affect the Senate, whose members serve for life.

Despite his defeat in Commons, Diefenbaker's shaken Conservative party closed ranks behind him as its leader. Earlier some Conservatives had called for him to step aside.

Although some Conservative leaders declared that anti-Americanism will not be a campaign issue, the prime minister as recently as Tuesday accused the United States of more meddling in Canada. Diefenbaker appeared committed to hit hard on the question of Canadian sovereignty and the idea that "nobody is going to push Canada around."

The Liberal party, under the leadership of a Nobel Peace Prize winner, Lester B. Pearson, has deplored the rift between Canada and the United States over the nuclear weapons issue. It says it hopes anti-Americanism will be kept out of the campaign.

If it does come up, the Liberals say, they will take a stand in favor of restoring good relations with Canada's friends and allies. The conservative Ottawa Journal agreed with Diefenbaker that the United States was wrong in intervening in Canada's nuclear debate, but it added:

"This issue must not be carried down into the gutter of reckless talk. This is no time for 'no truck or trade with the Yankees.'"

Pearson also said he did not believe nuclear weapons should be a political issue. That should be a matter for government decision, he said.

The real issues of the campaign, said Pearson, are unemployment, economic growth and confidence in the Canadian economy, plus the need for decisive, purposeful government by a majority party.

A spokesman said the tour would include stops at Detroit, Chicago, Kansas City, Los Angeles, Phoenix, Albuquerque, and Houston.

The spokesman said the attorney general will meet in those cities with U. S. attorneys and other law enforcement officials.

The trip was described as similar to others he has made for meetings with federal officers in more than 20 other cities in the last two years.

A detailed itinerary has not been worked out, the spokesman said, but tentative plans call for Kennedy to visit Detroit Monday morning.

Former Lansing Policeman Freed In Theft Of Ale

LANSING (AP) — Charges against one former Lansing policeman involved in the theft of a case of ale were dismissed and another had charges reduced in Municipal Court Wednesday.

Visiting Justice Peter Marutiak of Owasco ordered charges of willful neglect of duty against Bobby Evans dismissed.

Evans, a two-year member of the force, was charged with failing to report the crime when he saw his partner, Keith Seigel, take a case of ale from a warehouse last month while both were on patrol duty. Seigel had been with Lansing Police for 17 years.

The charge against Seigel was reduced from larceny from a building to simple larceny. Prosecutor Leo Farhat asked for the reduction in charges, noting that both men had been dismissed from the force.

Marutiak deferred sentencing of Seigel until Feb. 19.

Medicare Parcel, Due Next Week, Gets Fast Plug

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy today prescribed ways to pep up the nation's health services—then got in a quick plug for his politically hot medicare proposals he may send Congress next week.

Today's message to Capitol Hill spelled out how the $1.6 billion in health funds—requested in his budget for the fiscal year starting next July 1—would be spent. It's $250 million more than the price tag in the current fiscal year.

Can't Afford Illness
The President proposed steps to:

Encourage and support training of more doctors, dentists and nurses, by helping build new and expand existing schools.

Extend for five years authority to share costs of building new hospitals, boost funds for new nursing homes, and share costs of hospital modernization.

Strengthen federal authority over sales of cosmetics, over-the-counter drugs and other health items.

Require cosmetic manufacturers to prove the safety of their wares and health device producers to prove both safety and effectiveness.

The President devoted two paragraphs in his 10-page message to what he called "a tragic irony that, medical science has kept millions of retired men and women alive to face illnesses they can't afford."

Shortage Serious
"Needless suffering in silence, financial catastrophe, public or private charity—these are not acceptable alternatives in the richest country on earth," he said. "Social Security health insurance must be enacted this year."

It was an advance boost for his medicare proposals, defeated in Congress last year. He intends to ask for it again in a general message on aging which a spokesman said would probably come next week.

The President also wants to boost research and control of air pollution and general health research by the National Institutes of Health.

The President called the shortage of doctors and dentists "particularly serious" since the schools are not graduating enough trained persons to keep up with the growth of the population.

More Nurses Needed
In 1950, there were 1,300 people in the United States for each family physician," he said. "The present outlook—unless steps are taken now is for more than 2,000 people per family physician by 1970."

He also pointed to the shortage of nurses—and the estimated need to increase today's professional nursing ranks of 550,000 to 680,000 by 1970. About 4,000 nurses are graduated from colleges each year.

The President recommended extending the 16-year-old Hill-Burton Act, due to expire June 30, 1964, for another five years. It permits federal sharing of hospital building costs. The President wants it widened to include modernization costs, and funds increased for nursing homes for older people.

He also asked Congress to provide a five-year program in which federal mortgage insurance and loans would help doctors and dentists build and equip small centers for group practice.

This is expected to stretch further available medical and dental personnel as a temporary solution to shortages.

Bus Crash Fatal To 15 Who Went To See The Queen

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP)—Tragedy marred the visit of Queen Elizabeth II to New Zealand today, just as on her first visit in 1953.

A bus loaded with Maoris, returning from the welcome for the queen Wednesday night, plunged over a 130-foot bank and 15 of the aborigines were killed. There were 21 injured, some seriously.

On Dec. 24, 1953, while the then Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip were in Auckland, a train en route to Auckland plunged into a river and killed 200 persons. Many of those aboard were on their way to see the royal couple.

Elementary School Issue Endorsed By Citizens Council

Support of the School bond issue of Feb. 18, which will provide funds to improve the elementary buildings of the Escanaba Area Public Schools, was voted by the executive committee of the Escanaba Area Citizens Council for the Public Schools at a recent meeting.

"The Escanaba Area board of education in its increasing concern over the elementary building needs of the district is presenting to the voters a desirable proposal for meeting the immediate elementary building requirements," said Robert Haack, president of the Citizens Council in reporting the executive committee consensus.

"Members of the Citizens Council have for the past three years conducted their own study in all areas of the school program. As a result of this intensive study, the executive committee of the Citizens Council is in complete agreement with the Board of Education's request that the voters of the Escanaba Area approve 1.8 mills for the purpose of providing the immediate needs of the elementary school children on Feb. 18," Haack said.

The executive committee of the Citizens Council offers its support in accordance with the expressed purpose of the organization as stated in its constitution:

"We recognize that a sound system of public education is the cornerstone of our social, economic, and political structure and must be the concern of all the citizens of the community. We believe that the people are responsible for the schools; that the quality of education in any community is in direct proportion to the informed, intelligent, and active support of the schools by the people of that community. It is the purpose of this council to encourage and unify active support for the public schools of Escanaba."

The reports of three of the Council's study committees have been accepted by the executive committee and will be made available in a continuing effort to keep the general public informed in the following categories:

1—Why do we have public schools? Chairman Robert Mosenfelder.

2—Where are the Schools? (physical plant and enrollments.) Chairman A. V. Aronson.

3—What is the school program? Chairman Irwin Ten Haken.

Reports have not been completed in the following two categories:

Special Services, Dr. N. L. Lindquist; and Finances, Claude Bohn.

The meetings of the Escanaba Area Citizens Council for the Public Schools are open to the public and each year at the time of the general meetings in October and May efforts are made to add to the membership through public invitation.

Executive Committee members are: Robert Haack, president; Everett Dahlvik, vice president; Mrs. Frank Bender, secretary; Frank Bender, board representative; Walter Bright, administrative representative; Hilla Karpinen, M. E. A. representative; Mrs. Russell Johnson, past president; Mrs. Carlton Johnson, PTA Council president; and the chairman of standing committees.

Detroit & Northern Sets Records In Loans, Savings

The annual meeting of the Detroit & Northern Savings & Loan Association held Tuesday in Hancock re-elected Endicott R. Lovell, Walter A. Johnson and Frank T. Hinks directors for terms of three years.

Elected officers and directors were Donald W. Seaton, chairman of the board and president; Walter A. Johnson, vice chairman; Endicott R. Lovell, Kenneth D. Seaton and Frank T. Hinks, vice presidents; Dr. Leonard C. Aldrich, Arthur J. Dion and Dr. John R. Van-Pelt, George W. Polley, directors; Blanche B. MacLean, secretary-treasurer; William C. Martino, vice president, Detroit operations; Bernard A. Gwisdala, vice president, Flint operations.

The association reached new highs during 1962 by advancing over $40 million to Michigan homeowners and increasing net savings by $10 million. Dividends paid to savers amounted to $3,724,000, an all-time high record, due in part to raising the earnings rate from 3 1/2 per cent to 4 per cent on April 1.

In November the association's tenth branch office was opened in Grand Blanc.

President Seaton stated that competition among lending institutions for prime home mortgages in 1963 promises to be intensified, as both commercial banks and savings and loan associations seek ways to invest funds profitably.

"While the economic outlook for 1963 is not entirely clear," said Seaton, "we anticipate another year of sound and steady growth in savings and mortgage lending."

January Bay Level Foot Below 1962

The level of Lake Michigan-Huron and Green Bay-Bay de Noc in January was 0.99 foot below the level of January 1962 and 2.01 feet below the average level since 1860.

The January level was 0.69 foot above the lowest level on record in 1926 and 4.67 feet below the highest level on record in 1860.

The change from December to January was a decrease of 0.25 foot. The average change for the same period is a decrease of 0.14 foot.

Spacemen Must Bag Up Whiskers

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Astronauts will have to bag their whiskers after shaving on a spaceship—to prevent them from floating around the cabin and creating a fuzzy haze.

That's the word from Dr. Stanley C. White, a key scientist in the man-to-the-moon venture.

White says electric razors are being considered for use by astronauts because, for one thing, water will be at a premium. And, he says, with no water for a man-sized rinse, dried soap might irritate an astronaut's skin.

And unless corralled, he told a news conference Wednesday at the Space Medicine Symposium at Brooks Air Force Base, the shaved off whiskers—weightless, just like everything else aboard—would float around freely, creating at least a nuisance.

Other space buffs speculated that free-floating whiskers might even gum up the works in delicate electronic gear aboard the ship.

Dr. White, of the space agency's manned spacecraft center, got into the celestial shaving discussion in relating plans for the personal hygiene and other care of astronauts who participate in the Gemini program.

That's the venture in which two-man crews will orbit the earth for periods up to two weeks as a prelude to the moon flight.

"Why shave at all on a space ship?" a newsman asked.

"Because the beard acts as a collector of debris and dead skin," said White, "they'll need to shave."

"But they must gather the whiskers and put them in some kind of a container."

Museum Meeting Centennial Needs

Although wind-whipped and surrounded by snow drifts at Sand Point in Ludington Park, the Delta County Historical Museum is far from being "closed" this winter, reports Dave S. Coon, museum director and secretary.

"Because of the Escanaba Centennial year and the publication of a local history, there have been many requests for information and many items from the Museum, including pictures, manuscripts, books, old papers and documents," said Coon.

Reporting to the Delta County Historical Society at its recent annual meeting, Coon said that attendance at the Museum the past summer totaled 3,743, over 700 more than the previous year. The Museum was also the recipient of many valuable and interesting gifts. Coon said that because of the many requests for the services of the Museum this year he has made it possible for the Museum to be opened upon request.

"The rule of not permitting books and records to be taken from the Museum had to be suspended during this period, and many things are now in the hands of persons working on Centennial projects," said Coon. "We have a record of the items loaned and we expect they will be given careful handling and will be returned to me as soon as the need for them is ended, he added.

Landscaping of the Museum grounds was begun last fall by the city and will be continued in the spring with the planting of lawns, shrubs and trees. Construction of walks and a parking area complete the improvement. The Museum was established in 1956 by the Delta County Historical Society with the cooperation of the City of Escanaba, owner of the building. The Historical Society leases the building for $1 a year and the city assists in the maintenance of the structure. The Delta County Board of Supervisors cooperates in financing the operations of the Society with an annual appropriation.

George Embs of Escanaba is president of the Historical Society which has a membership of about 300. Their dues plus special gifts and contributions and the county appropriation meet the annual budget of about $1,200.

The Stephenson Eagles will formally open the new physical education facility Feb. 16. The Manistique Emeralds will furnish the opposition for the high flying Eagles who have won their last four games. A very interesting phase on this occasion will be the preliminary game starting at 6:30 p. m. This game will be between the Stephenson Junior Varsity team and the winner of the Escanaba-Gladstone Junior Varsity game. The winner of the contest on Friday will represent the South-Eastern section of the Great Lakes Conference at the annual JV Tournament at Munsing.

School authorities have indicated that ticket prices will remain the same for this event. The game has been designated as Parents' Night for varsity players. Parents will have special seats of honor and will be recognized prior to the opening of the game.

Groups or persons who have made donations for equipment and facilities for the new addition will be honored. These will include Joseph Beaudoin, Bank of Stephenson, Stephenson Lions Club, and Mr. and Mrs. William Lubka.

Forestry Course Offered In Delta

A forestry course in woodland management will be offered in February to woodland owners of the Delta County area, announces J. L. Heirman, Delta County Extension director for Michigan State University.

The course will cover improvement and harvest cutting practices for the kinds of timber stands found in this area and plantation and wild balsam fir Christmas tree cultural practices.

There will be three class sessions scheduled to meet for two hours each Monday evening Feb. 11, 18 and 25 at 8 o'clock. Classes will meet at Perkins High School and will be taught by Roy E. Skog, forestry specialist, M. S. U. Extension Center, Marquette.

Heirman said all interested persons are invited to attend the course. It should be of particular interest to farmers, timber operators, and business and professional people who may own from one to several acres of forest land.

The course will stress improvement practices that can be used to improve the quality and growth of young hardwood, spruce-balsam fir, and swamp conifer timber stands. The clearingcutting, seed-tree, shelterwood and selection methods of harvesting and re-producing forest stands will be explained. How they apply to hardwood, swamp conifers, spruce-balsam fir, aspen (poplar) and other timber stands ready for harvest will be discussed and illustrated.

One class session will deal with Christmas tree production. Practices that can be used to take advantage of natural reproduction of balsam fir to develop a highly productive Christmas tree farms will be explained. These include release to give balsam fir full sunlight, thinning, stump culture and shearing. Plantation production practices will cover the choice of trees to plant, shearing techniques for spruce and pine, and marketing trends. The course is open for everyone interested.

Marines Start Fitness March

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — U.S. Marines are on the march to prove they are just as fit as the Leathernecks of Teddy Roosevelt's day.

From Florida to Arizona, it was "pick 'em up and lay 'em down" for some proud members of a proud corps who took a suggestion from President Kennedy as a challenge and set out to meet it.

The challenge: Hike 50 miles in 20 hours, double-time the last half-mile and run the final 20 yards.

The first to report mission accomplished was Lt. Col. James W. Tuma, 49, a Marine stationed at the U.S. Army Electronic Proving Ground at Ft. Huachuca, near Tucson, Ariz.

"I had a notion I could do it," he said after stepping off 50 miles in 13½ hours Wednesday.

At Pensacola, Fla., Marine Sgt. Stanton E. Jordan set out on his day off, hiking around a 5-mile course at the naval air station, where he is a drill instructor.

"I consider this a personal challenge," the 37-year-old sergeant told reporter Pete Williams of the Pensacola News-Journal.

Five Marine reservists started out shortly before midnight to hoof it 50 miles to Little Rock, Ark., where their reserve unit is based.

Film Program At St. George Society Meeting

BARK RIVER—A sound film, "Africa, Continent of Promise," was shown by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph J. Dunleavy at the Monday evening meeting of St. George Rosary Society held in the parish hall. The film depicted conditions encountered by missionaries serving in Tanganyika.

Mrs. August Fudula, chairman of the Libraries and Literature committee, urged all to renew interest in reading, trying to find a little time each day. She also suggested giving magazines and books to others to read.

A nominating committee was named by the president, Mrs. Leonard Niquette, to present a slate of officers at the March meeting. Members are Mesdames Richard McDermott, Henry Vandermissem and August Fudula.

The card party sponsored by the St. Catherine, St. Rita and Sacred Heart Circles, last Saturday night was a success, socially and financially. Mesdames Clarence DeMarse, John Dugas and Louis DuBord were co-chairmen of the event. A card party is planned for Saturday, Feb. 23, with Mrs. Henry Bonjean, Mrs. Terry DeLoughery and Mrs. Antone Cavadeas as co-chairmen. This party will be sponsored by St. Patrick, St. Agnes and Our Lady of Fatima Circles.

The program for March will be presented by the committee on Cooperating with Confraternity, with Mrs. Leonard Veaser as chairman. Mrs. Fred Gasparick is chairman of St. Jude Circle which functions this month and St. Catherine Circle will be in charge of March activities with Mrs. Louis DuBord as chairman.

Michigan Doing Good Job Meeting Education Needs

By DWIGHT PITKIN
Associated Press Writer

Dr. Lynn M. Bartlett, state superintendent of public instruction, believes Michigan has been doing a pretty good job of meeting the need for elementary and high school facilities.

The need was created by the spectacular jump in the nation's birth rate in 1946-48.

Bartlett, in an interview, said he saw no immediate prospect of a breather for taxpayers in footing the bills for new buildings. Despite a recent decline in the birth rate, there will be a steady, if not so spectacular, increase in enrollment each year, he said.

The nation's birth rate has been dropping since July, 1961, and the U. S. Public Health Service says the decline has persisted long enough to establish a significant trend downward. The birth rate and also the fertility rate were lower in each of the 15 consecutive months ending Sept. 30, 1962, than for the corresponding months a year earlier.

Blast Due In 1974

The Health Department says Michigan's rate has been in line with the national pattern. Births in Michigan have been lower for the last 13 consecutive months.

For September, 1962, the birth rate in the nation was 24 live births per thousand population and the fertility rate was 119.7 live births per thousand women in the child-bearing ages, 15-44 years. These levels were 5.9 and 6.4 per cent below the September, 1961, rates.

Two University of Michigan professors who have made studies of population trends as affecting the schools are of the opinion the drop in the birth rate is only temporary and will have no long term effect on enrollments.

David Goldberg, assistant professor of sociology at U-M, noted that the first wave of postwar babies will hit the colleges in 1964-65 "when we suddenly get a huge jump in the number of 18-year-olds."

"These kids will give birth to more babies than we've ever seen," Goldberg said.

"The elementary schools will be hit by another blast around 1974. It will be like the second stage of a rocket."

Cost 800 Million

Bartlett estimated that in the next five years the public schools in Michigan will need 18,500 new classrooms. This would require between $700 and $800 million.

"Last year we provided a few more classrooms than actually were needed to take care of growth, reduce obsolescence and eliminate half-day sessions," Bartlett said. "Currently there is need of 6,500 classrooms. Last year we added 1,215 elementary classrooms and 1,644 secondary classrooms."

Generally, the elementary grades are kindergarten through the 6th and the secondary are the 7th through the 12th grade.

"In the decade of the 1950s," Bartlett said, "we built two elementary to one secondary classroom. The ratio now is approximately one to one." He added that secondary school construction in the next few years might exceed elementary.

Bartlett said the state helped new communities solve their problems through legislation that put the faith and credit of the state behind local school bonds.

"The state guarantee acted as a stimulant for districts lacking an adequate tax base," he said.

"During the past six years we have been building 8.6 classrooms per day every day of the year," Bartlett said. "Thus 237 additional pupils per day could be handled."

"We still have a long way to go," Bartlett added. "There was very little construction during the depression years of the 1930s and during the war years of the 1940s."

Women Hustle To Finish Bustle

By PEGGY MUNSON

Now we know why Grandma had only a few dresses when she was a girl . . . have you ever tried stitching yards of hem, applying lace or tacking 40 buttons with button holes, by hand? An even more amazing feat for Grannie was when she washed and ironed the frocks with no electricity, hot water or time-saving detergent.

The women of Escanaba appreciate now probably more than ever, their sewing machines. Women of all ages are getting in "the swing of things" by preparing now for the Centennial celebration.

They are having a great time choosing patterns and material for their dresses. Many women have their's all ready or almost finished and the latest idea is to make a matching one for their daughters (although some daughters are making them for the mothers.)

Mrs. Robert LeMire is putting the finishing touches on her dress. She chose a colonial print on a cream-colored cotton. The print is in shades of green and black. It took eight and a half yards of material and is fashioned in an authentic 1860 style.

Federal Aid Asked For Lavish Resort In Kentucky Hills

HAZARD, Ky. (AP)—A lavish recreational resort costing $4.68 million is proposed on a 1,000-acre mountain tract in Hazard.

Businessman Elmer Roll said the promoters would apply for federal aid for about 65 per cent of the cost under the Area Re-development Act.

Hazard, population 6,000, is in the economically depressed eastern Kentucky coal field.

Roll said the resort would include a 200-unit motel, 1,000-seat amphitheater, recreational and shopping center, 500-seat convention hall, ski lift and runs, model coal mine and museum and other facilities.

He predicted it would provide employment for 246 persons plus home employment for 230 craftsmen.

Bonds For Hoffa Not Big Enough

CHICAGO (AP) — The Tribune said today that James R. Hoffa, Teamsters Union president, and other top Teamsters officials have failed to obtain satisfactory surety bonds although they are required under the Landrum-Griffin labor law to have them in effect by Friday.

The Tribune said that Frank Wright Sr., president of United Bonding Co., Indianapolis, who promised to provide the bonds, offered a proposal that was too little—and probably too late.

Wright had announced that he would bond the Teamsters' leaders but the Tribune said he discovered that his company had a $60,000 bond limit for any one person.

Hoffa had charged last week that the Justice Department was exerting pressure on bonding companies to prevent them from insuring Teamsters' funds. However, he told a congressional committee that he had no first-hand information of this.

The Tribune said that a Chicago insurance executive, who was not identified, said that because the International Teamsters Union has almost $40 million in assets it will be necessary for Hoffa and other international leaders to post $500,000 bonds.

Helping The Unemployed

Governor Romney is urging the Michigan Legislature to make the ADC-U program available to Michigan. This is a federal program of Aid to Dependent Children of the Unemployed.

The program stands for many things to which Governor Romney is personally opposed on a basis of good sense and morals. Why then, is he urging the Michigan Legislature, which has been rejecting ADC-U, now to adopt it. His position of support for the program is reported to be giving it a strong chance of acceptance by the Legislature, whose Democratic minority is for it, and whose Republican majority will now be split at least by the Romney endorsement.

The Governor says that the people of Michigan should be against further concentration of responsibility in the Federal Government because it weakens self-government and because Michigan citizens pay at least $2 in taxes for every dollar returned in federal grants.

But he says Michigan's refusal to participate in a federal program can't change a trend.

His message to the legislature on ADC-U explained that until 1961 the ADC program was limited to children deprived of parents by death, absence or incapacity. In 1961 Congress amended the Social Security Act to extend ADC coverage to families whose need was due to unemployment and in 1962 coverage was extended until 1967.

The 1962 amendments give more leeway to the states and place emphasis upon returning parents to employment. The first appeal is to help sell more power for Washington to the states and the second is to quiet criticism that the act will blanket the chronic unemployed under perpetual support.

Federal participation in ADC-U, in which both parents are eligible for grants, is the same as for other ADC causes; providing a maximum of $20.50 a month for each child and parent living with a child. Additional aid comes from the state.

In June 1, 1962 with only one parent eligible and only 15 states participating, the program covered about 250,000 persons. Four states (Illinois, New York, Pennsylvania and West Virginia) accounted for 88 per cent of the total number of families, and average payments ranged from $67 per family in Washington to $246 per family in Illinois. In most states with comprehensive general welfare programs like Michigan, those transferred from direct relief to ADC-U also tended to be the higher cost cases of families with children.

Michigan, said Governor Romney, is in a position to benefit from such aid. Last October Detroit had 8,364 family direct relief cases, with 53.8 per cent eligible for ADC-U. Michigan had 16,891 family direct relief cases with more than 9,000 families eligible for ADC-U.

For Michigan the Governor recommends that all direct relief families with children under 18, where the head of the family is employable but unemployed, and where the head of the family has received unemployment compensation on or after Jan. 1, 1958, be eligible for benefits. Under such eligibility an estimated 10,130 families in Michigan could get ADC-U, or a total of 50,650 persons.

Such a load would cost under existing direct relief programs $17.7 million a year to state and local units of government. Under ADC-U, the federal government would contribute $12.4 million and the state $7.8 million and the eligible families would be removed from direct relief. Although the average monthly payment under direct relief of $128 to $166 per family would be increased to an average payment under ADC-U of $167 per family, the state would save a small amount and the counties would save almost $9 million.

This "savings", as Governor Romney noted earlier, is no saving at all because Michigan must pay $2 to get back $1 of federal aid, but the Governor is suggesting that the state adopt the program on a basis of "if you can't beat 'em, join 'em."

There is a consideration which transcends the saving of tax money spent on welfare, serious as this consideration is with welfare spending in its present proportions. This consideration is the effect on the "beneficiaries."

The present program of direct relief treats unemployment as an interim emergency. It aims only to tide families over until the head of the family is employed again. This makes employment more attractive than aid to most families, but not all. Welfare workers know that the persons who stay on as relievers are the welfare system's greatest failure and responsibility. They have been "helped" into a status of dependent citizenship which strongly and adversely affects them and which can make mendicants of their children.

ADC-U is a serious threat to American self-regard. In the guise of aid to needy children—who even under the present system are sent to employers "for a note to say you haven't got a job for my daddy"—it would make children a ticket to parents' support, instead of the historic and moral reverse of this situation. The implications of this great change are incalculable and should cause its rejection for the good of American character.

That unemployed parents need aid is obvious. They are getting it now. Expand it. Offer them public works employment when private employment fails to give them and their children the stimulation of self-sufficiency. Avoid the dread cynicism of "Joe's had another kid; he'll never have to work again."

Lock Your Car

Millions of automobiles change hands in the United States each year. Not a small proportion of these exchanges come through theft.

In December alone, over 27,500 cars were stolen, says the National Automobile Theft Bureau, a theft prevention and car recovery agency run by 350 insurance companies. This was a 16 per cent increase over the same month in 1961.

Fortunately, 90 per cent of stolen cars are usually recovered, yet the 10 per cent that disappear amount to millions upon millions of dollars.

According to the Bureau, most of the unrecovered cars are stolen by professional car theft rings, which dismantle them and sell them piecemeal. The widely scattered parts are almost impossible to identify and recover.

Best safety step against theft is to lock your car. It has been found that where communities adopt lock-your-car ordinances, car thefts decline.

Edson In Washington

By PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—The despair of average citizens over the prospect of real international co-operation ever being achieved is worsened now by the strange behavior of French President Charles de Gaulle.

On the one hand, he has blocked Great Britain's admission into the European Economic Community—EEC.

On the other hand he refuses to go along with the agreement by President Kennedy and U. K. Prime Minister Harold Macmillan for a Polar missile defense plan for Europe.

In Washington, the official line is that De Gaulle's upsetting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and Common Market ap- peals is unfortunate, not what the United States would have wanted. But it is said these are questions for the European countries to decide for themselves, and the U. S. will stay out of the arguments.

It is maintained with a straight face that whatever comes of this will cause only a temporary de- tour of peaceful traffic down the main streets of history.

U. S. trade czar Christian A. Herter is in Paris, conducting negotiations on tariff reductions, and ambassador Livingston T. Merchant is in Paris, negotiating for creation of a NATO nuclear force, just as though De Gaulle had not merely pounded a shoe but thrown one.

No American official in any way responsible for the conduct of U. S. foreign policy could afford to take a position contrary to this view in this nuclear age. The defense of the free world is necessarily held indivisible. Close political relationship across the Atlantic is considered inevitable because of the community's economic interdependence.

All this unity is considered essential if there is to be any successful resistance to world-wide Communist aggression.

In one sense, it is said to be the current Communist split between Russia and Red China which encourages people like De Gaulle to go off on tangents. And it is the success of the United States in forcing Russia to withdraw mis- siles and jet aircraft from Cuba which gives western go-it-aloners their self-confidence to show off.

De Gaulle's great display of independence now is considered characteristic of the behavior of other leaders of the European democracies. When the United States first proposed that European maritime nations stop freighters flying their flags from carrying Communist arms to Cuba, they all howled to high heaven. They maintained it would be impossible to stop free trade on the high seas. It would be too difficult to organize such an embargo.

When they saw the photo- graphs of the Russian missiles on the Cuban bases, however, all the howlers shut up immediately and swung into line to support an all-out blockade. De Gaulle even sent a message to Kennedy, saying that if the Cuban crisis de- veloped into a war, France would be with the United States.

So the expectation and the hope are that if another show- down develops, De Gaulle will be right in there pitching coopera- tion with the best of the allies.

Nobody professes to know what the general will do next, for he is French and the French are unpredictable, which is what makes them so delightful and so annoying at one and the same time.

A final rejection of British membership in the Common Market is not expected to be permanent. A temporary rejection might interfere with U. S. negotiations for reduction of European tariffs and the making of new trade agreements, but it might help exports of U. S. farm products.

The British are famous for being able to muddle through, even when the going is roughest. Their failure to gain admission to the Common Market at this time would not change U. S. policies toward Europe. And the prospects for withdrawal of American forces from Europe, while desirable as a long-range objective, is not even being considered in the face of today's world situation.

Final Cancer Cure Is On Way In Slow Step Series

How long until medical science cures cancer?

This question has taken on new urgency in the minds of many since the deaths of four Hollywood actors within 18 days of each other — Charles Laughton, Thomas Mitchell, Jack Carson and Dick Powell.

The impact of these headlines touched off what was described as a "mild panic" among Southern California men, who pushed into cancer detection centers in record numbers.

That a cure will be found for cancer seems well-nigh inevitable. More research and more scientific articles touch on this subject than any other, including space and radiation—one of the causes of cancer.

It is a subject which pervades every medical specialty, and forms the basis for what is probably the biggest worry in the United States today, outstripping even the individual's concern over nuclear war. Sudden death can't compete with the idea of lingering suffering, which cancer conjures in the minds of many.

"I had the unhappy task of telling a man that the chest pains he was experiencing were due to a bad heart," recalls one specialist. "Imagine my surprise when the patient breathed a sigh of relief and said, 'Thank goodness. I thought it was lung cancer.'"

But despite all the man-hours, all the millions of dollars and all the hope and fear that have been poured into cancer during the scientific revolution of the 20th Century, the disease remains largely an enigma. Nobody pretends to really know when cancer will be cured, or even what causes it.

Where mankind stands in relation to cancer was made evident at the American Medical Association's recent clinical meeting in Los Angeles. The picture is not as gloomy as some would have you believe, for the chaos that pervaded the field a few decades ago has been largely cleared away. We seem to be coming down to cases with the disease.

For one thing there is finally a high degree of agreement on just what cancer is — a disease of the cells and growth gone haywire.

Certain agents (carcinogens) such as some chemical compounds, along with radiation and possibly some viruses, seem to have the ability to alter some body cells and spur them into prolific uncontrolled reproduction. These unnatural cells multiply so rapidly that they destroy or crowd out normal cells and tissues.

The mechanism of this growth is believed to be centered in the genes of the cells — the chemical molecules of the nucleus which dictate the functions of the cell.

When these molecules are disrupted by foreign chemicals, invaded by a virus, or changed by spears of radiation, then the normal dictates from the nucleus are altered. For some reason these alterations often touch off cancerous growth.

Since all this activity takes place in a minute world that can't even be viewed by an electron microscope, finding out what changes take place in the cell nucleus and how to stop it, is a highly intricate and as yet unresolved task.

So, while we can say what cancer is and how cancer goes about its destruction, we still can't say why cancer is — the factor which would mostly clearly point the way to a cure or a preventive.

Ignoring all this, many researchers have struck out directly in search of a cure — a process which requires not only a high degree of knowledge but years of patience, as well as a little luck.

So far thousands and thousands of drugs have been tested in the hope of finding one that would inhibit cancer. Some, such as thiopeta and flourouracil, have shown enough promise to spur hopes that we might be on the track of a cure at last.

New techniques are being devised constantly — the latest involving the use of highly toxic drugs which are injected into the blood supply of the cancer tumor.

All of this is a long way from the type of cure that penicillin, for instance, has made possible in the case of pneumonia.

But as we learn more: as we accumulate a better understanding of the why's and wherefore's of cancer, the chances of a "break-through" increase.

The search for this understanding has narrowed into two general concepts. One is that viruses are at the root of human cancers. The other that viruses are just one of many irritating carcinogens. Broadly speaking, the virus theory holds that it takes both an irritant and a virus to spawn malignant tumors.

That certain viruses can cause cancer in laboratory animals is firmly established, but no one yet has uncovered a human cancer virus. The very nature of the virus makes it a likely candidate for breeding cancer.

From all that has been determined about these ultra-minute organisms, it appears that a virus is not quite living and not quite non-living. It seems to be a blob of nucleic acid — the heredity molecule and the stuff of genes — surrounded by a protein skin. Some microbiologists liken viruses to free genes without a cell.

When a certain virus comes in contact with a certain living cell for which it has an affinity, it squirts its nucleic acid into the cell. Once injected, the virus "genes" make their way to the cell nucleus and apparently insert themselves into the cell's chromosomes, or string of genes.

The insertion of these "wild" genes upsets the whole function of the cell. In established virus diseases, such as polio, the virus causes the cell to stop its normal operation and turn to the production of more viruses. In the process the cell is destroyed.

But if viruses are responsible for cancer, a different process is employed. Instead of causing the cell to destroy itself, the virus causes it to burst into rapid, malignant reproduction.

The viral theory of cancer was formed by Dr. Wendell M. Stanley, Nobel prize winning virologist, in 1956. At that time the idea seemed revolutionary, but since then there has been much experimental evidence to support such a theory and nothing to disprove it.

It is the hope of many in the field that virus is necessary to cancer, for then there is a possibility that it can be knocked out once and for all — destroyed by drugs or neutralized by vaccines.

Just how firm this possibility might be is open to speculation. Not all virus-caused diseases can as yet be prevented by vaccines. Besides, to date, only one virus disease has ever been cured by a drug and this under rather unique circumstances.

A sidelight of the cancer-virus research has been development of the idea that certain cancers may be due to an undeveloped or suppressed bodily defense mechanism.

Carcinogenic chemicals, radiation or a weakness developed before birth may lead to a poorly functioning system, which in turn fails to detect or fails to react against cancer viruses and so permits them to establish their chain of malignancy.

The theory was evolved in part from studies of virus-caused leukemia, or cancer of the blood-forming tissues, in laboratory animals.

But whether viruses are at the bottom of all cancer or not, the fact remains that exposure to certain carcinogens tend to produce cancer.

This was probably first made clear by the early chimney sweeps of London who were inclined to develop cancer on areas exposed to soot.

Everyone is exposed to some carcinogens. Sunlight, for instance, has been shown to induce skin cancer, yet life is impossible without sunlight. Radiation strikes at us not only from fallout but from the earth, from outer space and a hundred other natural and man-made sources.

In addition, some occupations by their nature expose workers to specific carcinogens. Radiologists, for instance, used to expose themselves unwittingly to a cancer hazard from the very tools they were helping to develop to fight cancer.

Certain metallic dusts, aromatic amine dyes, specific fractions of petroleum and many other chemicals and compounds used in industry and certain occupations have been proven dangerous because of their connection with cancer.

The search for carcinogens has been drawn out because in man it usually takes so long for cancer to develop, even under daily contact with a potential cancer stimulator.

The possibility that air pollution and smoking may produce lung cancer was not demonstrable until involved statistics covering a period of three decades or more had been sorted out and evaluated.

Then too, while something like radiation — induced cancer may show up in a laboratory animal in a period of weeks or months, a man exposed to a proportionate amount of radiation may not develop a cancer tumor for several decades. By then the exposure which caused it might be forgotten. At any rate, whether caused by chemical or virus, fallout or sunlight, or a combination of factors, medical science is closing in on cancer.

It may be that some cancer research sounds more like shooting in the dark than enlightened experimentation. But there is nothing hit-or-miss about the cumulative results of such work. In fact, some physicians think that these patient men have already started giving us the "cure." It depends upon your point of reference.

*** Irradiation, certain drugs, and surgery have prevented death from cancer among thousands and enabled them to live until death caught up from other causes — including old age.

In a sense, this is a cure — a cure for some cases of some forms of cancer. Every year more people are surviving cancer, a good indication that our techniques and treatment are progressing. Carry this progression far enough, and cancer will no longer remain a major health problem.

In other words, the final "cure" is already underway. But it is coming about through a slow series of steps rather than by means of a dramatic breakthrough.

Soo Concerned About Carbide

SAULT STE. MARIE — Community concern over the status of the proposed transfer of the water power rights from Carbide Power Co. to Edison Sault Electric Co. was the main topic of discussion at the City Commission this week.

There were two reports of possible industrial prospects watching the developments at Sault Ste. Marie. One was from City Manager W. M. Cotton, who said several prospects are looking at the possibilities at Sault Ste. Marie and are waiting to see what the Corps of Engineers decision will be on the requested transfer.

This is one reason why a prompt decision is desirable, Cotton said. The second was from Roy Ranson, Sault resident who works in the general field of minerals. Ranson told of a preliminary inquiry he received from a British-Canadian metallurgical group with American affiliations in metal processing which would be "of vast interest in this area," Ranson said. "Everything we have here hinges on the availability of the power."

Ranson said the amount of power available at the Sault is "relatively small" and from an engineering standpoint, the Edison Sault should have it. Exporting the power the distances proposed by a group of electrical co-operatives and municipal utilities would not make sense to anyone except to co-operatives that can borrow federal funds at two per cent interest for their capital, Ranson said.

Cotton stressed some points that are involved in the question. One is that the Edison Sault Electric Co. serves four counties in the eastern Upper Peninsula, either itself or through the Cloverland Electric Co-operative.

His second point is that the question before the Corps of Engineers, with eventual decision by the secretary of the Army, is whether or not it approves assignment of the water rights from Carbide Power Co. to Edison Sault.

Carbide Power has a specific contract with the Corps of Engineers until 1980; the contract is not up for sale to anyone who wants it, and nobody else can come in and take over the contract. Cotton declared. Both the Corps of Engineers and the Carbide Power Co. are committed by its terms until 1980 and the only issue at stake is whether or not the Corps of Engineers approves assignment of these rights to Edison.

Edison Sault Electric Co. is a public utility. Carbide Power Co. is a private company. The transfer of the water rights from Carbide Power Co. to Edison Sault Electric Co. would be a significant event in the history of the Sault Ste. Marie area.

Trees Thrive Upside Down

EAST LANSING (AP) — Fruit trees are being grown upside down at Michigan State University.

The result is not roots sticking up at the sky, nor apples that must be harvested like potatoes. Trees with wide-angle branches result.

The tree scientist who came up with the idea says the resulting trees will be able to withstand storms better, will be easier to prune and quicker coming into bearing.

Dr. Robert Carlson has been working with the inverted trees for about three years. He's pleased with the results and published a scientific paper on his work in November.

About two years ago, Carlson planted some year-old northern Spy and Red Delicious apple trees in boxes lined with plastic and packed soil around their roots. He then inverted their position and compared their growth with identical trees in normal positions.

While inverted, new branches at first grew downward, then became perpendicular to the stem and finally curved upward.

At the same time, the roots at first grew upward, then reverted and grew toward the gravitational pull.

The result: Roots and branches growing toward each other.

When the trees were replanted outside the greenhouse, normal growth processes took over. But the angle between the branch and the trunk, instead of being narrow, remained a right angle.

Carlson explains that the branch form of the trees is established after 50 days.

He also tested the Bartlett Pear and the Schmidt Cherry to improve their tree shape.

The pear produced branches which were at first perpendicular to the stem, but then curved strongly upward. As a result, they formed and umbrella-shaped tree when returned to a normal position.

The cherry trees formed a more moderate umbrella shape.

Pastor, 87, Dies At Lake Linden

LAKE LINDEN (AP)—The Rt. Rev. Msgr. N. J. Raymond, pastor of St. Joseph Roman Catholic Church here, died of bronchial pneumonia Tuesday night. He was 87—the oldest pastor of any church in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

Before coming here, Msgr. Raymond held pastorates in Negaunee, Ishpeming and Hancock.

Bishop Thomas A. Noa of Marquette will officiate at funeral services Saturday.

Big Names Back Fermi Reactor

MONROE (AP)—The $100 million Enrico Fermi atomic power plant at nearby Lagoona Beach has behind it some of the biggest names in American business.

Forty-nine companies are represented among members of either Atomic Power Development Associates, Inc., or Power Reactor Development Co.

APDA researched for, designed and tested the atomic reactor, encased in an air-tight, welded-steel building that towers the equivalent of six stories above ground and reaches that far underground, too.

PRDC built the atomic plant, including the reactor, and will run it, furnishing nuclear-generated heat to make steam for Detroit Edison's adjoining 150,000-kilowatt turbine generator.

Detroit Edison has the biggest stake of any. This includes $22.2 million invested in steam and electric generators.

No Profits Expected

Nobody expects to make a monetary profit out of the operation of Enrico Fermi. For one thing, it cost much more than a conventional coal-burning plant. For another, its major objective is to advance atomic technology and possibly provide new scientific breakthroughs.

But some will utilize the know-how picked up in building this first-of-its-kind commercial plant to join what the Atomic Energy Commission describes as "a substantial nuclear equipment industry."

"There is," the AEC said in a report to President Kennedy, "widespread and growing interest abroad in the utilization of nuclear power and an increasing tendency to turn to American industry as a manufacturing source."

Vice president Arthur Griswold of Detroit Edison explains: "Detroit Edison is in the business of producing and distributing electric power. Atomic power became a promising new technology. We believe it is up to management to look ahead and it is our opinion that stockholders want their companies to advance with the times."

Big Step Forward

Edison executives think, too, that Enrico Fermi, fast-breeder that actually produces more atomic fuel than it burns, may provide their company with a big jump forward toward a reduction in power electric costs.

The Federal Power Commission estimates that the use of electric energy will grow tenfold by the year 2000. AEC estimates by then that nuclear energy will be producing half the nation's electrical power.

The day of so-called fossil fuels—coal, oil and gas—isn't over. A tenfold growth in generation of electricity, with nuclear plants furnishing only half, would cause the use of plentiful fossils to rise four to five times.

The AEC says it may be in the 1970s before nuclear power becomes competitive throughout the country and it may be in the 1980s before breeder reactors become economically attractive.

Safety devices are major items of costs. Not counting a thousand and one various control mechanisms, Enrico Fermi has an estimated $10 million in safety features.

PRDC carries $60 million in property and liability insurance, plus an additional $500 million in government-sponsored indemnity insurance.

Countryside Tested

The air and its flow over the Lake Erie countryside has been tested time and again for radio activity although Enrico Fermi never has been fired up with Uranium. When operations begin, comparisons can be made to be certain it still is the same.

Samples of soil, water and various biological materials have been tested over a widespread area of southeastern Michigan and adjoining Ohio and Ontario.

That's partly against the day when maybe Farmer Jones may want to blame Enrico Fermi for radioactivity in Ole Bossy's milk. Maybe PRDC can show it was the same in 1960 and 1961. The National Sanitation Foundation made the studies.

The United Auto Workers Union, the International Union of Electrical Workers and the United Paper Workers of America have fought Enrico Fermi virtually every step of the way.

The unions contend the plant is inherently too dangerous to be allowed to operate in densely populated southeastern Michigan.

They tried to get AEC to withdraw its construction permit, but lost. Then they went all the way to the U. S. Supreme Court, where they also lost. Earlier this year they opposed AEC issuance of an operating license, which PRDC now is asking after three years of non-nuclear testing.

PRDC—in all the steps up to now—has been able to prove to the satisfaction of AEC's experts they're on the right track—with no chance of running off.

Car Sales Break January Record

DETROIT (AP)—Ward's Automotive Reports says new car sales last month shattered all records for January.

The service said total sales of 543,521 and daily sales averaging 20,905 both set new high marks for the month. The previous records, set in 1955, were 512,000 for the month and 20,480 daily sales.

General Motors took 55.6 per cent of the industry's January sales, Ford 25.4 per cent, Chrysler 11.8 per cent, American Motors 5.8 per cent and Studebaker 1.3 per cent.

Unitized Bodies Dropped By GM

DETROIT (AP)—Starting with the 1964 model year the smaller Buick, Oldsmobile and Pontiac models will use separate frames, just like the big cars do.

The Special, F-85 and Tempest have been unitized, or frameless, since they were introduced at the start of the 1961 model year.

The change has not been announced, and won't be since General Motors always is reluctant to talk about future models. So there is no official explanation for the switch.

There have been plenty of educated guesses, however. These appear to fall into two classes—that the GM divisions were dissatisfied with the unit bodies, and that it became too cumbersome to assemble cars of both types (with and without frames) on a single assembly line as was necessary in some combined Buick-Oldsmobile-Pontiac (B-O-P) plants.

In separate body and frame construction, the frame holds the body using possibly an "X" or "Y" design. In unit construction there is no separate frame but portions of the body are so designed as to carry the load. This is similar to aircraft construction.

Hudson was a pioneer in this method and today all American Motors' cars are unitized. So are all but the Imperial at Chrysler Corp. Ford uses the separate frame method only for the Ford Galaxie and Mercury Monterey. Studebaker has no unitized models while General Motors kept frames for its standard sized cars and made its compacts unitized.

When General Motors adopted unit construction for its small cars, the word circulated that the big cars soon would be changed to that method, too.

Carl Cenzler, chief body engineer at American Motors, suggests one reason this did not come to pass is General Motors' penchant for frequent body style changes.

He says that with unitized construction every possible load, weight and stress factor must be determined precisely in advance whereas the frame design, itself, often is continued from year to year even though body changes are made.

Cenzler, a firm disciple of unit construction and still believes it will ultimately be adopted by all auto manufacturers.

Sweethearts Since 1893 Will Marry

WARWICK, R.I. (AP)—At the city clerk's office, Wilbur Curtis and Clara Bush asked for a marriage license.

They said they had been running around together as kids, back in 1893, and now they wanted to get married.

The childhood sweethearts were parted when she was 17 and her family moved to Michigan. He is now 87, and she 86.

Clara married and had two children. Her husband died 20 years ago. Curtis' wife died in 1961.

Last September, with the old Rhode Island courtship in abeyance for 70 years, he went out to Michigan and inquired around for Clara. The reunion took place at Keego Harbor.

Curtis returned home to Warwick, proposed by mail. She accepted, and the wedding takes place Friday.

Crater Lake, Oregon, is the deepest lake in the U. S., measuring 1,932 feet.

California G.O.P. Not Discouraged Despite Reverses

By MORRIS LANDSBERG
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Where does California's Republican party go from here?

The once dominant state party has suffered two staggering defeats in four years. It has lost all but one state office, yielded control of the legislature and been shorn of big-name leaders.

To complicate matters, it is under severe pressure by a highly vocal, well-organized conservative element gunning to take over the reins.

GOP leaders are far from discouraged. Harmony is the official line—and it is backed up with concrete evidence of the Republican victory in the recent 1st Congressional District special election.

Comeback In 1964?

There are ambitious plans for a comeback campaign in 1964: a massive drive to overcome the 1.3-million deficit in registration, a $5-million war chest.

But, not too far from the surface, the party is split. The present stewardship, constantly under fire, is somewhat shaky, and one Republican organization differs from another in basic political policies.

The immediate stake is California's potent bloc of votes at the 1964 Republican National Convention.

Many Republicans take it for granted that GOP voters will be offered at least two choices—between New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater—in the presidential primary next spring. It also is possible there will be a third slate on the ballot—unpledged, under a new law which permits uninstruc-

Few state parties have suffered the attrition which has marked the hard times and decline of the California GOP in recent years.

It began when Gov. Earl Warren, who managed to hold the various factions together, left for the U.S. Supreme Court. Then party power was shared by former Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, former Sen. William F. Knowland, and former Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Defeats Leave Void

Knight, reluctantly running for the Senate, and Knowland, out after the governorship, feuded in 1958, and both lost. Again, in 1962, Nixon tangled with a conservative state assemblyman, Joseph G. Shell. Nixon won the gubernatorial nomination but lost the election.

The defeat of the big three created a void. Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, now aligned with party liberals, has shown no inclination to step in.

The Washington (D.C.) Evening Star reported last week that Knowland is studying the possibility of trying for a comeback.

But Paul Manolis, assistant editor of the Oakland (Calif.) Trib-

They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Harlo

une, owned by the Knowland family, said he thought the Star had misinterpreted Knowland's statement. "All he told the Star was that he had no intention at the present time of re-entering public life," Manolis said.

The chore of operating the party machinery has fallen on State Chairman Caspar W. Weinberger, with the support of California's Republican national committeeman, Joseph Martin Jr. Both are San Franciscans.

They are trying to conciliate party differences.

For instance, Weinberger extended an invitation to all elements—specifically including John Birchers—to join the party.

Weinberger added the Birchers were welcome only if they were loyal to Republican principles, and that he suspected not many would qualify.

HUGE VIOLETS

Violets, of which there are some 400 species, are found in both hemispheres. In South America, ancestral home of the genus, some vines attain the size of low shrubs or trees, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

ELEGANT MANNERS

When we say a man has Chesterfieldian manners, we are complimenting him on his breeding. Lord Chesterfield was an English statesman whose name became a symbol of polished, elegant manners.

"EARTHQUAKE" LAKE

Reelfoot Lake, in Tennessee, was formed by an earthquake. Earthquake shocks caused a forested area to sink, making a huge hole which gradually filled with water to make the lake.

Chewing Gum?
Gummi Salivaria

VATICAN CITY (AP)—If Pope John XXIII wanted to refer to television during a discourse in Latin, how would he do it?

He would say, "imagination transmissio per electricas undas"—images sent by electric waves.

Chewing gum? "gummi salivaria."

These samples are from the fourth and latest edition of Antonio Cardinal Bacci's dictionary of modern words and their translation into Latin, the language of the Roman Catholic Church.

Cardinal Bacci has been the Vatican's top Latin expert since the reign of Pope Pius XI. He presented his latest dictionary to Pope John Tuesday.

For things that didn't exist in Caesar's time, Cardinal Bacci selects what he considers the closest approximation. Automobile is automaton. Garage is autoredarum receptaculum.

Some of the translations constitute personal judgments. Jazz, for example, is translated absurda symphonia, absurdi cantus, absurdi soni—absurd music, absurd songs, or absurd sounds.

Tin Ear Overcome

Dear Ann Landers: Correction, please, on your statement—"You've got a tin ear, brother, and there's no cure for it."

There is, indeed, a cure for it. If "Brother" willing to work hard. A cousin of mine loved to sing but the poor guy couldn't carry a tune in a picnic basket. He was determined not to miss the fun of singing, and set out to memorize sounds. He actually slaved at training his ear, and after a while he was able to sing on key.

By the time he got to Harvard he sang well enough to join the Harvard Glee Club. For four years he was one of their best baritone. Although he never achieved absolute pitch (this cannot be taught) he did succeed in overcoming his tin ear.—ROBERT C. MARSH

Dear Bob: I stand corrected (by the distinguished music critic of the Chicago Sun-Times yet). Thank you, in behalf of all the tin ears in the land.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing in regard to the 19-year-old girl who signed herself Grace. She and her mother were like strangers. There was no warmth between them. Grace said there never was. You put the whole blame on the mother. I think you could be wrong. My own daughter is 16, and she's another Grace. When she was seven, she let me know she didn't want my hugs or kisses. Whenever I tried to be affectionate she pushed me away. So, I stopped trying. Many times I longed to hold her in my arms but she had set up the barrier.

My husband left me when my "Grace" was six. Perhaps this is a clue. I remarried a few years later and now have a loving husband and a darling, affectionate daughter. The two girls are as different as night and day. So please print my letter, Ann, and tell some of those cold daughters to warm up toward their mothers and maybe they will get something in return.—DELTA

Dear Delta: No one is born "cold." All children want to be loved. If your daughter refused to accept your affection it was because you somehow rejected her first.

Your "clue" is a revealing one. You did not love your husband and this child by him was probably unwanted—and unloved. Your second marriage was a good one. You loved the man and you loved his child. A child's heart is the most delicately sensitive machine in the world. It knows.

Dear Ann: When I have guests for dinner I like to clear the dishes and leave everything in the kitchen until I can do things MY way. My guests think they are doing me a favor when they insist on "helping." I keep repeating, "No, no... I'd prefer to do it myself," yet they go right on chipping my china, breaking the stems off my good crystal and scratching the silver.

One guest threw a large piece of roast beef into the garbage can before I could stop her. Another guest tossed out several servings of salad saying, "Why clutter up the refrigerator with this?" Please, Ann, tell people when a hostess says she'd rather clean up the dishes herself she means it. Thanks—RUTH

Dear Ruth: When some people say "NO" it sounds like "May-be." If you don't want help be emphatic. Often it's not what you say but the way you say it, that delivers the message.

MICHIGAN QUIZDOWN SERIES prepared by MICHIGAN TOURIST COUNCIL No. 43

U.S. Court Urged To Guide Nation On Apportionment

ANN ARBOR—The U. S. Supreme Court should spell out applicable standards of legislative apportionment during its current term, a member of the faculty of the University of Michigan Law School contends.

Lower courts, without guidelines for determining what is and what is not valid apportionment, are entangled in conflicting legal theories and, especially in Michigan, are embroiled in political wrangles, charges Jerold Israel, an assistant professor of law.

Israel calls on the Supreme Court to set these standards during its current term. "Hopefully," he writes, "when the dust settles and the court has spelled out the applicable standards, the restrictions of precedent will force injudicious judges to return to the law and will spur legislatures to appropriate action to eliminate arbitrariness in legislative apportionments."

In an article entitled "The Future of Baker v. Carr," Israel dissects the Supreme Court findings in this much-publicized case involving reapportionment in Tennessee. A key fact, he points out, is that in Baker v. Carr the Supreme Court did not rule on the constitutionality of the Tennessee apportionment, but only ruled that a lower court could decide the case.

The Supreme Court based this decision only on the 14th Amendment guarantee of equal protection. Israel continues, and refrained from an interpretation of Article 4, section 4 of the U. S. Constitution. The latter he explains, provides the each state shall be guaranteed a "republican form of government."

Israel points out that the high court has consistently refused to define whether this means "one-man-one-vote" government, or something else.

Without any standards or precedents on the Supreme Court level, Israel makes the point that lower courts have adopted two alternative theories on what does determine fair apportionment.

First, some courts demand the ideal of "one-man-one-vote" and allow only election districts that are numerically equal.

Alternatively, other courts demand numerical equality as far as possible but recognize that other factors enter into a definition of fair apportionment.

The limits of possibility and administrative practicality vary from ratios of two-to-one to four-to-one (or even more) between election districts, a condition which Justice Frankfurter has dubbed "the mathematical quagmire."

Especially is this true in Michigan, Israel points out, because of state laws that prohibit election districts from crossing county boundaries.

Israel in a Michigan Law Review article suggests that neither alternative advanced by lower courts thus far is the answer. As long as it limits itself to the guarantee of equal protection afforded by the 14th Amendment rather than that of a republican form of government, he maintains that the Supreme Court should accept any apportionment plan which has behind it a formulated program or policy. It does not matter, he says, whether this is based on strict numerical equality or other factors, just as long as it is a formulated policy.

Israel notes that in some states, where judges are elected, the public has been subjected to the spectacle of political maneuvering on the bench.

With no guidelines available, state judges find that "Almost any decision they make will be subjected to charges of political partisanship. The unfortunate result may be direct judicial entry into the arena of political debate, as was the case in Scholle v. Hare (the Michigan apportionment case)," he writes.

"There the various opinions were sprinkled with injudicious comments directed at political opponents, including a scarcely-veiled warning that the majority opinion might go by the wayside if the 'wrong' judges were chosen in the upcoming election."

News Analyst Of AP Stricken

NEW YORK (AP)—John M. (J.M.) Roberts, Associated Press news analyst and columnist, died Wednesday night at his home in Kew Gardens, Queens, of a heart attack. He was 60.

Roberts was on The Associated Press staff for 32 years.

He was foreign editor in the early forties, during World War II. Since 1947, he had written his daily column, "Interpreting The News." His last column, written Wednesday, appeared in this morning's newspapers. It dealt with Britain's attempt to offset the effects of the exclusion from the European Common Market.

Roberts was city editor of the Charlotte (N.C.) Observer before joining The Associated Press in 1931. Prior to that, he had worked on the Durham (N.C.) Herald and the Asheville (N.C.) Citizen.

One of his biggest stories with The AP was a 24-hour beat on the German invasion of Holland in May 1940. The story was based on a tip from Hendrik Van Loon, the historian.

After World War II, Roberts also covered the start of the Marshall Plan program in Europe.

Roberts was born in Elkton, Ky. His mother, Margaret Roberts, was nationally known in literary circles as the teacher whom novelist Thomas Wolfe described as the mother of his spirit.

Roberts attended Davidson College and the University of North Carolina.

Surviving are his widow Verna, and a daughter, Mrs. Raymond H. Palmer of Greensboro, N.C. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

U.P. Gets Inaugural Rite 126 Years After Statehood

Michigan has had more than 100 governors but for the first time in the 360 years that it has been governed by France, Britain and the United States and its own territorial and state governments, its governor is participating in two inaugurations this year.

The first was on Jan. 1 at the state capitol at Lansing. The second will be at the State Office Building in Escanaba on Saturday, Feb. 23.

The unprecedented second inaugural will be an occasion for festivities in the Upper Peninsula and review of the history of Michigan, so unique among the states in being in two land masses. Not until the admission of Hawaii as the 50th state was Michigan's geographical separation paralleled in the union and the islands of Hawaii have been described as much more alike than the Peninsulas of Michigan.

When George Romney made his final campaign tour of 1962 in the Upper Peninsula, he promised an audience at Escanaba Airport to return after the election and his pledge has been shaped into the second inaugural. People from the more than 300 mile spread of the Upper Peninsula — from the Montreal River bordering Wisconsin to the St. Mary's bordering Canada — are expected for the ceremonies. There will be a second swearing-in by Associate Justice Michael D. O'Hara of the State Supreme Court and an inaugural ball and reception.

Many Governors
The second inaugural will permit the Upper Peninsula to remind the Lower Peninsula that there are two Michigans, and the older one will tell the bigger one of their historic differences.

Michigan had 28 French governors when it was known as Upper Canada and Canada was New France. It had 11 British-Canadian governors in the period that straddled the Revolutionary War and saw American Independence. It was ruled by two governors of the Old Northwest Territory and then by a governor of Indiana Territory and by 10 governors of Michigan Territory.

Ceded to Britain by the French in 1763, Michigan was 20 years later transferred to the new United States, but America did not come into actual possession of it until July 11, 1796. The first white man in the Upper Peninsula, Etienne Brule, had arrived 174 years before, in 1622.

Michigan Territory

When the Northwest Territory was divided, Ohio became a state in 1802, Michigan was set off as a territory embracing all the undivided area to Lake Superior and west to the Mississippi in 1805; Indiana became a state in 1816 and Illinois in 1818. Detroit, settled out of St. Ignace by Cadillac in 1701, was the seat of territorial government.

After Michigan was admitted to the union as a state by act of Congress Jan. 26, 1837, the Michigan Legislature in 1847 moved the seat of state government from Detroit to Lansing and cleared a site for the new capital in a school section of timber.

Inaugurals, held in Detroit for the first 10 years of the state's history, have been in Lansing for the 114 years since then. In all that century and a quarter no governor has ever been inaugurated in the third of Michigan north of Mackinac.

Persons who wanted to see the new governor take office went to the capitol. The separated nature of the state has required the creation of branch offices of state government in the Upper Peninsula but there has never been any branch ceremonial until this year's second inaugural.

Lansing Inaugurals

There has never been a large attendance of Upper Peninsula persons at Lansing inaugurations because of the distance involved. New York is as close to Lansing as most cities in the Upper Peninsula. When the first inaugurations were held downstate there were not even many persons from the Lower Peninsula in attendance. There was no railroad communication with the East. Travel west of Utica, N. Y., was by stagecoach and canal boat. There was no convenient land passage between Detroit and Chicago and all went by the lakes. West of Chicago there were only natural roads. The telegraph wasn't to be used for many years to come.

When Michigan was admitted to the Union it was only after yielding to Ohio's insistence that it surrender its lower border, the so-called Toledo Strip, to Ohio. In compensation Michigan was awarded the Upper Peninsula. The compromise was bitterly protested in Michigan. Lucius Lyon, one of Michigan's first two U. S. Senators, said of the Upper Peninsula, "There we can raise our own Indians in time to come and supply ourselves now and then with a little bear meat for a delicacy." But later Lyons changed his mind and predicted that the Upper Peninsula in 20 years would be worth $40 million.

U. P. Inspected

An expedition by Territorial Governor Lewis Cass in 1820 from Detroit to Mackinac, across Lake Superior to the Mississippi and back to Detroit has indicated copper and iron in the U. P. At Sault Ste. Marie the little force tore down the British flag which the angry Chippewa raised there to show their loyalty to the British troops still garrisoned on Drummond Island.

The Upper Peninsula wasn't wanted by Michigan, but it was wanted by the people west of Lower Michigan. From 1829 they petitioned Congress to establish the Territory of Huron and many persons living in Michilimackinac County preferred to be in the proposed Territory of Huron to being in the Territory of Michigan.

Until 1818 Michigan included only a small part of the eastern Upper Peninsula. When Wayne (Detroit) County was organized in the Old Northwest Territory in 1796 it included all of present Michigan except the western Upper Peninsula, with the addition of northern Ohio and Indiana and a strip of eastern Illinois and Wisconsin bordering on Lake Michigan. Cleveland, Toledo, Detroit, Chicago and Milwaukee are all within the old limits of Wayne County.

Michigan Is Created
In 1818 the western part of the Upper Peninsula and the lands west to the Mississippi were added to Michigan and Governor Cass established Michilimackinac County in the eastern Upper Peninsula and northern Lower Peninsula, and to the west of it Brown and Crawford counties in what's now Wisconsin.

When Michigan was admitted to the Union in 1837 the western Upper Peninsula wasn't open to white settlement yet because it had not been ceded by the Indians to the Federal Government. That came with the Treaty of LaPointe (Ashland) in 1842. It came opportunistically just after the discovery of copper in Keweenaw and just before the first mineral rush in America. The development of the Upper Peninsula, begun with lumbering in the 1830s and with fisheries even earlier, acquired great impetus.

In 1916 there was not a city in Arizona, Nevada, New Mexico, or Wyoming as large as Escanaba, in which the second inaugural will be held. The Upper Peninsula, 13 times larger than the State of Rhode Island, had a larger population than Delaware, Idaho, Wyoming, Arizona, Nevada or New Mexico. Its assessed valuation was greater than that of 17 states. Houghton County alone had a larger valuation than New Mexico and more population than Nevada.

But although Michigan has had 66 governors as a state (55 different men) only one of them came from the Upper Peninsula. He was Chase Salmon Osborn, a newspaper publisher of Sault Ste. Marie and he left one of the great records of accomplishment in the governor's office and was one of Michigan's most illustrious citizens and envoys, the state's greatest worldling and one of the nation's most colorful men.

Osborn was elected in 1910 to succeed Gov. Fred M. Warner, who had broken Michigan's tradition of a two term limit by serving three terms. Osborn had been unable to win the nomination in the 1900 Republican convention, when he charged that wealthy party leaders had spent $750,000 to control the convention.

To achieve independence he went off and made himself a reputed millionaire as an iron hunter and went to the 1910 convention independently wealthy.

Osborn's Record
The Republican organization opposed him but he won anyway. He had been state fish and game warden, state railroad commissioner and a regent of the University of Michigan. He went into office determined to stay only one term and he acquired a reputation as a veto governor, but he introduced the selective veto into budgetary practice and by this means and general economies erased a half million dollar state deficit and left office with the state treasury holding a half million dollar surplus.

He got the Legislature to order a referendum to give women the vote, but it was defeated. He initiated a state conservation program, got state aid for agricultural schools, authority for the labor commissioner to enforce the labor laws, was responsible for Michigan's first workmen's compensation act. He prohibited brewery control of saloons, cut railroad rates (he personally inspected 12,000 miles of railroad track from a locomotive cow catcher as railroad commissioner), forced rail crossing separations, effected medical registration, visited every state institution personally yearly. He reduced government costs and exempted farm woodlots from taxation to encourage forestry, advocated inclusion in the constitution of the initiative and referendum amendment.

Peninsulas Varied
When Michigan became a state in 1837 it had about 175,000 population. Now the Upper Peninsula has nearly twice that number and the State of Michigan is nearing the 8 million mark.

The two peninsulas have developed very differently and this has made difficult their understanding of each other and their aid to each other. The Upper Peninsula continues one of the nation's great reservoirs of natural resources and the Lower Peninsula has become one of the world's greatest industrial complexes. Their political ties are their strongest link and the Upper Peninsula inaugural for Governor Romney will introduce a new expression of political oneness. The 103 other governors didn't come to the first Michigan for ritual beginning of their administrations.

Quebec Carnival Queen Crowned

By The Associated Press
Peggy D. Monroe, 19, Ocala, Fla., failed her driver's test the hard way. Police said while taking her exam she backed her sedan into the rear of the Florida Highway Patrol station. Damage to the building was estimated at $65.

Lise Mercier, 23, was crowned queen of Quebec's Winter Carnival, which ends on Mardi Gras—eve of Lent. The coronation was held outdoors for the first time—a race track—so more people could view the ceremonies.

Retired Gen. Lauris Norstad, former North Atlantic Treaty Organization commander, returned to his native state for a speech in Minneapolis. Greeted by signs urging him to run for president in 1964, Norstad said "I am not going to run for public office."

Air Force Plane Takes Wounded Youth To Hospital

George T. Sairs, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Olsen of 1409 1st Ave. S., who was accidentally wounded Jan. 4 in the left leg by a shotgun blast, was flown to St. Mary's Hospital at Rochester, Minn., on Wednesday.

Wounded by a companion whose trigger caught on a twig, accidentally discharging the gun, the young man was at first a patient in Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital at Manistique.

He was brought to Escanaba by hospital plane on Wednesday but because of unfavorable flying conditions, the U. S. Air Force supplied a plane to complete the emergency mercy flight from here to Rochester.

The youth's left calf and the bone of the leg were shattered by the shotgun pellets. He is in room 3-218, St. Mary's Hospital.

the lower court, and said: "nothing in the act supports the suggestion that (unfair dealing) has a peculiar meaning different in nature from or broader than what is commonly understood in the business community to be a reputation for fair or unfair dealing."

"This is not to suggest that such discriminatory practices when engaged in by real estate brokers and salesmen are not unfair."

"It suggests only that such practices are not commonly understood to be included in the term 'unfair dealing' either by our people generally or by our legislature, regrettable as that circumstance is to some of us."

The decision was handed down in two separate opinions, with justices Eugene Black and Thomas Cavanagh concurring for slightly different reasons. Among the five signing the Sours opinion was Justice Otis Smith, a Negro.

Briefly Told

The Escanaba municipal airport served a total of 840 North Central Airlines passengers in January, according to a report by Airport Manager Jon Thorin to City Manager George Harvey. Four passenger flights were cancelled because of bad weather. There were 44 transient flights in addition.

Blood donors turned out quite well for Wednesday's Red Cross blood procurement clinic at the First Presbyterian Church. The goal was 135 pints and collections were 121 pints, short 14 for the day. One hundred and sixteen persons signed as donors but only 65 kept their appointment. Remainder of the donors were walk-ins. The three-day clinic ends today.

Mobile Library Takes Month To Complete Route

By RUTH THOMAS

Menominee County Librarian "Have books, will travel" is a variation of an old theme. It expresses the kind of thinking which brings the bookmobile to people who are unable to come to the main Menominee County Library at Stephenson to check out library materials.

Moby, our library on wheels, is familiar to rural crossroads. It has a capacity of about 2,500 books. Books alone, easily available via the bookmobile, are proving that mobility is important to libraries as well as other phases of our modern ways of life.

The bookmobile visits both schools and community stops. Outside the City of Menominee, it carries its load to 15 different schools and 30 community stops throughout the county. It takes four weeks for the bookmobile to make a complete circuit of the area.

The library also reaches out to the home-bound. People who are unable to come to the library to check out their own books are not overlooked. The library tries to include these "shut-ins" in its program by taking them books and introducing them to new interests.

The unit visits regularly scheduled stops at neighborhood shopping centers. The collection on the bookmobile is constantly tated in order to provide readers with a different set of books on each visit. Also, during days of school stops, the book collection has to be entirely different from what it is during days of community and home stops, when adults' tastes have to be satisfied.

Regulars on the bookmobile are Mrs. Bert Gustafson and Dan Deacon, the driver. They give regular assistance to readers who at times cannot find the exact book they are looking for, or who wish to borrow a pamphlet or magazine, or who need to have a reference question answered. When a request cannot be filled on the spot, the requested item will either be brought out on the next trip, or will be mailed, if the request is urgent.

The bookmobile is not just a "fair weather" friend to families in the county. Books, like mail, must go through. When temperatures get below zero, or when blowing snow makes highways slick, the bookmobile still makes its appointed rounds.

Pictures Refute Story Of Soviet Buildup In Cuba

could hit only the tip of Florida. The bulk of the briefing was conducted by a youthful expert, John T. Hughes, who emerged from the secrecy-cloaked defense intelligence agency for that purpose.

Hughes backed up McNamara's assurances, saying that as late as last Monday U.S. aerial photos showed that the onetime Soviet missile and bomber bases were "inactive, still dismantled and marked by no military activity."

Armed with a long pointer and 12-foot-tall blowups of reconnaissance pictures, Hughes recounted how high altitude planes — U2s, though he didn't say so—gathered the first hard evidence of work on bases for 1,265-mile medium range missiles last Oct. 14. Three days later, he said, these planes spotted bases being built for 2,530-mile intermediate range missiles.

Ships Shadowed

Hughes' presentation highlighted these points, not made public before: That nuclear warhead bunkers were seen at all medium range and intermediate range missile sites. Up to now, officials have only said they assume nuclear warheads were in Cuba.

That 18 Soviet ships were on their way to Cuba when Kennedy ordered the blockade on Oct. 22 and that 16 of them—including five with large hatches indicating missiles below—reversed course.

That U.S. Navy planes and ships shadowed these Soviet ships, and eight that later brought out the missiles, all the way back to their home waters.

Ahead of the McNamara-Hughes television and radio report, Keating held a news conference and challenged the defense secretary to try and refute Keating's charges of a dangerous Soviet military buildup in Cuba.

When the two-hour administration presentation was finished, Keating didn't back off. He said McNamara "did not dispute in any manner any of the statements I made."

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Deno and son, Richard Escanaba Rte. 1, returned today from Ellsworth, Maine where they attended the wedding of Mrs. Deno's son, Victor Sopina, a former Escanaba resident. The wedding took place February 3. Also attending the ceremony Mrs. Deno's daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. David Larson of Milwaukee.

Cornell Trial Gets Under Way

IRON MOUNTAIN — The trial of Mrs. Edna Cornell, 35, of Kingsford, charged with assault with intent to commit murder in the stabbing of her husband, 40, during a quarrel at a Thanksgiving Day dinner, opened Wednesday.

All courtroom seats were occupied and all three walls were lined with standing spectators as the trial of the mother of six opened.

Mr. Cornell, who has recovered from critical stabbing wounds, was in court Wednesday morning and is expected to be called to the witness stand later.

A jury heard two witnesses during the morning session which recessed at noon. The first witness was Mrs. Elvera Rutheau, mother of Mrs. Cornell, who was staying with the couple at their Kingsford home.

She testified to the events leading up to the stabbing, stating that the argument started when one of the small children, Wanda, 2, ignited her table napkin with a candle on the table.

In the argument that followed Mrs. Rutheau testified that Merrill had her against the wall choking her. She said she lapsed into unconsciousness during the choking and testified she had bruises on her throat for several days.

She said that when she revived Merrill was gone and his wife was at the phone calling the Kingsford police. Merrill was found later by the police slumped over in his car which had gone out of control on a Kingsford street. He was bleeding badly, according to the original police report and was taken to the Memorial Hospital where he was in critical condition for several days.

The only other witness called Wednesday morning was Kingsford Police Chief George M. Pera. He told of visiting the Cornell home and talking to Mrs. Cornell after the stabbing. He also told of her confession to the stabbing which was introduced as a court exhibit. Chief Pera was a witness to the signing of the confession.

Area Unemployed At Seasonal Peak

Unemployment in the Delta-Schoolcraft area has apparently reached its seasonal peak and will probably remain at this high level for the next 60 days before it begins to decrease, according to James Damitz, manager of the local Michigan Employment Security Commission office.

Damitz said there are currently 1,363 persons registered for work at the local office. The figure includes 246 females and 225 veterans. "The total figure is 350 more than one month ago, but 100 under that of last year. Most of the increase in persons seeking employment during the past 30 days resulted from layoffs at a local manufacturing concern," he said.

According to Damitz, an analysis of their records revealed some interesting information regarding the make-up of the unemployed in this area.

Reelect Barron To Head Delta Soil District

Lewellyn Larson will represent the Delta district at a watershed procedures meeting to be held at Marquette on Feb. 20.

New members attending last night's meeting were Harold Meiers of Gladstone Rte. 1, Spar Sager of Escanaba and Joseph Wolf of Ensign.

Harnischfeger's New Manager Is Sport Car Buff

Raymond O. Fish, new manager of the Harnischfeger Corp. truck crane plants in Escanaba, observes construction of a component for a truck crane in the P&H plant welding shop. (Daily Press Photo)

By JEAN WORTH

Harnischfeger Corp.'s new Escanaba works manager is a foreign sports car buff.

That's to be expected of a man whose training and career experience have been most closely connected with industrial manufacture. But it might be expected that with such emphasis on industrial management that he'd be a city man and actually he's lived in a suburban or rural situation by preference in most of the communities that he has called home.

Raymond O. Fish, the new general manager of Harnischfeger in Escanaba is a native of Bingham, Ill. "It's a very small town in southern Illinois," he explains "aid it has gotten smaller in the last quarter century."

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert J. (Al) Fish, who now live in Beloit, Wis., were living in Bingham when he was born. Later the family moved to Beloit where their son enrolled in the Fairbanks - Morse apprentice course. He became a protege there of James W. Owens, director of welding at F-M and a famed leader in the science.

Fish took extension studies from Beloit College and the University of Wisconsin and before he finished his four year apprentice training in 1939 he was employed as a night foreman. As an apprentice he got 30 cents an hour to train people who were being hired for 95 cents an hour. His apprenticeship was tailored to qualify him as a supervisor.

Fish progressed in employment from night general foreman in the welding and fabricating shop to welding superintendent, to welding engineer. He had a helpmate from the end of his industrial apprenticeship, having wed Miss Hildegarde M. Clemens of Newmarket, Minn., in 1939. They had met in Rolling Fork, Miss., where his father was master mechanic on a construction dredge and his wife-to-be was with her sister, whose husband was superintendent of the construction project.

The Fishes have three children: Raymond, Jr., 23, of Brookfield, Wis., (where they lived before Fish's transfer to Escanaba), a trainee accountant who'll wed in June; Barbara, 22, a junior at Purdue University; and Karen, 20, who is working in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Fish left Fairbanks - Morse early in 1951 to join Modine, Mfg. Co., at Racine, Wis., as a manufacturing engineer in an operation producing unit heaters. In January, 1953 he went to South Wind Division of Stewart-Warner at Indianapolis as project development engineer and served two years there. The Division produced gas fired heaters for cars, furnaces, jet bomber and guided missile components, heat exchangers, etc.

In November, 1955 he joined Harnischfeger Corp. at Milwaukee as superintendent of the bridge and structural shop, and served for several years before transfer to Escanaba as general superintendent of Harnischfeger's Originating Division, in charge of its welding, forging, and sheet metal operations.

In Brookfield, west of Milwaukee, the Fishes lived next to a game preserve, sometimes saw deer tracks on their lawn. In Escanaba they will live in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lutzenberger, who are living in Dortmund, Germany for several years while on Harnischfeger assignment.

The Fishes have made the round of activities with their children, serving in Boy Scout and Girl Scout and PTA and board of education activities. He likes woodlands, "but to walk through, not to hunt in," and plans to become a fisherman so he can exercise a growing interest in the sport and also use some fine equipment that friends gave him when he left Milwaukee.

But while the Fishes have lived "way out" in Racine, Indianapolis and Milwaukee and will be on the edge of the community in Escanaba, he is obviously fascinated by mechanical wonders which are to be found in cities; so much so that even his top hobby concerns the maintenance and rebuilding of foreign sports cars. (He drives a Triumph and his wife a Karmann Ghia, and he recently bought one of the last of the MG models with square radiators to rebuild.)

His interest in machinery is dual; "machinery is no good without people," he says. "The machinery lasts longer and the people are happier when people are masters of the machinery."

"Get a group of people compatible among themselves and with their machinery and you should have a good operation." So men come before machines with him, but he cites that the men must change because the machines have changed so much.

In his 7 years at Harnischfeger's main works in Milwaukee he saw much change in industrial techniques. For example burning equipment (shape cutting of steel) was replaced with much more sophisticated equipment. The photo-electric cell was added to template equipment to guide the cutter so that a small template could be projected into much larger size on metal on the burning bed.

His industrial training was in the period of transition from bare electrodes in welding to covered electrodes and his career experience has been one of supervising constant change and growth. He came out of his apprenticeship a journeyman apprentice in welding engineering design and supervision and he has had great exposure in machining, forging, casting and assembly.

He is an engineer by training and vast experience, but not by academic accreditation. He runs nimble fingers over a calculator on his desk in lieu of a slide rule. He has a great respect for education but cites its lag behind experience and thinks that work-learn programs are well conceived and will help supply many of the technicians that the nation will need in increasing numbers.

Fish is 5 feet 10½ inches tall and he has a wrestler's grip and blue eyes. He accepted the assignment to Escanaba "to gain an objective I've set myself. I looked on it with a favorable light and since I've been here I have more reason to believe I did the right thing. There a certain contagious attitude that people who have lived here have. They like it so well they make me feel that I made the right decision."

Safe Uncracked; Cookie Jar Looted

EASTON, Md. (AP)—Burglars unable to crack the safe in the office of a bottled gas distributor finally settled for the cookie jar. State police said the safecrackers who broke into the place Tuesday night worked on the safe with a large screwdriver, a chisel, a hammer, a maul, a hacksaw, a burning torch, a hatchet and a pick.

They finally took a few dollars in change from a cookie jar.

COMPUTER POLITICAL SCIENCE

PALO ALTO, Calif. — Diplomats may someday use electronic computers to gauge the boiling point of the world's Castros and Khrushchevs.

North and his co-workers fed into the school's Burroughs 220 computer a behavior analysis of each leader's reactions to past events and a rating of how intense that reaction was.

The computer combines the judgments of the different experts working independently of each other and produces a complicated numerical pattern. This pattern is plotted on a "fever chart"—a graph that reveals the day-to-day variations in international tensions. North says reactions to diplomatic moves could be predicted before the moves are made, with a degree of scientific accuracy, by try-out plotting on the international tension chart.

Begin Planning Of Tourist Park

Members of the Gladstone Chamber of Commerce and the City Commission met this week with Glenn Gregg, supervisor of parks for the Michigan Department of Conservation, to further plans for the acquisition of the proposed Gladstone Tourist Park.

Attending the meeting were Bob Wellman, president of the Chamber; G. H. Casey, vice-president; Commissioner Reuben Sjoquist; and City Manager H. J. Henrikson.

Gregg explained that his department would prepare detailed plans for a 15-acre site at Saunders Point that would include 280 trailer and camp sites 50-foot square. He said he felt the campground would be the best and most popular location between Wells Park in Menominee County and Indian Lake near Manistique.

According to Gregg, the state department will provide all the engineering and architectural services for construction of the camp facilities.

Wellman said members of the Chamber are pushing the project in belief that one of the best means of attracting tourists to the area since the new four-lane highway has diverted traffic from the downtown district.

He said that in the near future a meeting of the business people will be held to inform them of the status on the project.

Plan Stronger National Guard

A board of officers, appointed by the Adjutant General of Michigan, has met and developed plans for the reorganization of the Michigan National Guard to meet the new type organization as established by the Department of Army.

This new organization, streamlined to facilitate modern warfare techniques will allot a total of 98 Company sized units for the State of Michigan.

In planning for the reorganization of the Upper Peninsula units the past history, site of the community and present type of unit was taken into account, the National Guard reports. It was noted that the Michigan Engineers have been organized in the Upper Peninsula for many years, with its unit history tied to the Calumet Light Guard since 1881. It was therefore unanimously decided by the planning board to retain the Michigan Engineers in the Upper Peninsula.

With the establishment of the new type of Infantry Division the need for engineer services will be increased and so also the strength of each of the Upper Peninsula Engineer units.

More emphasis is being placed on the ability of the Infantry to move quickly and with the support of its own Engineer Units.

With this in mind the Department of the Army has included a special Bridge Company in the allotment of Engineer units as well as much additional engineer construction equipment.

On reviewing the new Engineer organization, Lt. Col. Austin E. Lindberg, commander of the 107th Engineer Battalion, said "the new type of engineer units will develop more skills which will require specialist and more school trained men. We have been assured that ample schooling will be available for our men and this should improve their chances for better civilian employment with the training in operation and maintenance of this modern engineer equipment."

Among skills needed in the Engineer units are heavy equipment operators, carpenters, demolition men, riggers, bridge men and construction maintenance men. There will always be the need for more administrative personnel, cooks, supply men, radio and telephone personnel, and medical aidmen, said Col. Lindberg.

The computer, which uses filmed information, "can perform analyses using 1,350 channels of information simultaneously," said Dr. Louis J. Cutrona, Conductron vice president, professor of electrical engineering at the University of Michigan and one of the inventors of the device.

The new computer, he added, "has wide commercial and military applications, permitting routine and reliable processing of data more rapidly than the largest digital computers available today."

Upper Peninsula Golden Gloves tournament officials today announced that Lawrence Elie of Escanaba, one of the finest amateur boxers in the area, will represent the U.P. in the bouts to be held at Green Bay Monday, Feb. 11. Elie, coach of the Escanaba boxing team that won five individual titles in the recent tournament, did not compete here because the only other entry in his weight was one of his own boxers, Joe Sarasin. Elie turned in a masterful display of punching power and boxing skill in Green Bay last year, defeating veteran Jimmy Mack of Madison in the 112 open division. Elie did not compete in the Chicago tournament, however.

Sure to be one of the best bouts on the Green Bay card, matching winners from the U.P. against champs from Fond du Lac, will be in the 147 pound open division. Larry Bosanic of Manistique will carry the U.P. colors and his ring record is well known to fans here. Rated one of the top amateurs at his weight in the country, Larry reached the quarterfinals of the Chicago tournament last year. He will face Tom Heister of Milwaukee, who last year won the Kenosha welterweight title. Bosanic beat Heister in a paired match bout at Manistique last spring.

Melvin LaCrosse of Perkins suffered an ankle injury during practice last week and was unable to see action as the Yellowjackets bowed to Carney 73-43 Tuesday night. One of the Upper Peninsula's most productive scorers this season, LaCrosse has tallied 349 points in 12 games, an average of 29 per contest. LaCrosse scored 31 points against Carney in a previous game but the Yellowjackets also lost that one, 75-59. Carney carries a fine 12-2 record at this stage of the season.

Another Upper Peninsula bowler narrowly missed a perfect game this week. Jack Brisbane topped Twin City keglers with a 299 count, leaving the 5-pin on his 12th ball.

Ironwood captured its fifth straight Michigan-Wisconsin Conference ski tournament in the best showing in the history of the event. Red Devil skiers swept the top four individual places in both the downhill and slalom events. Ironwood, however, placed second to Marquette in the annual Blue Key invitational meet held at Houghton last weekend. Marquette took top honors in both the boys and girls divisions.

Selma Strauss and Shirley Wetthuhn of Daggett took the lead in the doubles division on the first weekend of action in the Marinette-Menominee Women's Bowling association tournament at Wausauke with a 1068 score. Grain Belt of Daggett leads the team event with 2491 and Willow Kochler of Marinette tops the singles list with a 583 series.

Hawks, Wings In 3-3 Hockey Knot

NEW YORK (AP)—It didn't take long for Don McKenney, playing his first game for the New York Rangers, to adjust to his new surroundings and teammates.

The veteran center, obtained from the Boston Bruins Monday in a swap for Dean Prentice, produced the tie-breaking goal and assisted on the clincher as the Rangers came from behind and

Triple Title Card Plans Announced

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A California gate receipt record may come out of the triple world championship fight card in Dodger Stadium, March 16.

Co-promoters Cal Eaton and George Parnassus announced Wednesday what could be one of the outstanding ring attractions of recent times with this card of 15-round matches:

Welterweight champion Emile Griffith, New York, and Luis Rodriguez, Cuba.

Featherweight champion Davey Moore, Columbus, Ohio and Sugar Ramos, Mexico.

Battling Torres, Mexico, and Eddie Perkins, Chicago, for the world junior welterweight title made vacant by the retirement of Dullio Loi of Italy.

California's record gate is $383,080, set Feb. 4, 1960.

defeated the Montreal Canadiens 6-3 Wednesday night.

In the only other National Hockey League game of the night, the first-place Chicago Black Hawks and the Detroit Red Wings played a 3-3 tie.

With the score tied 3-all at Madison Square Garden, McKenney tipped in a shot by Andy Bathgate midway in the second period and set up Bathgate's 24th goal of the season at the start of the third stanza for a 5-3 Ranger lead.

Lowell MacDonald's first NHL goal, with 69 seconds to play, enabled Detroit to tie the Chicago. The Black Hawks increased their league lead over Montreal and Toronto, tied for second, to five points.

Gordie Howe put the fourth-place Wings in front early in the first period while Chicago's Pierre Pilote and Wayne Hillman were in the penalty box.

Kenny Wharram evened the score in the final minute of the first period and rookie Chico Maki put the Hawks on top 2-1 with the only goal of the second period.

Parker McDonald steered Howe's pass past Hall early in the final period to pull the Wings even again. Chicago's Al MacNeil was in the penalty box at the time.

Wharram scored his second goal of the night midway in the final period to put the Hawks ahead.

Coach Is High On Art Heyman

By The Associated Press
Toward the close of the 1961-62 basketball season, Coach Bones McKinney of Wake Forest was asked his opinion of Duke star Art Heyman.

"I wouldn't attempt to try and add any new adjectives on Heyman. There aren't any left. He's great," McKinney replied.

The Wake Forest coach had no reason to downgrade that estimate today after the Blue Devil cornerman led Duke to an important 97-66 victory over McKinney's Deacons.

The serious, 6-foot-5 history student tossed in 22 points, handed out 13 assists and grabbed 10 rebounds in the 36 minutes he played Wednesday night.

The triumph left Duke, ranked third in the nation, with a 16-2 record and 9-0 in the Atlantic Coast Conference. For Wake Forest, the principal challenger to Duke this season, it was the second straight league loss after eight victories.

In some of the other major games, Pitt blasted Fordham 87-61, St. Louis routed Louisville 78-53, LaSalle scored its ninth straight in a 80-65 victory over Gettysburg, Villanova stormed over Canisius 79-60, Army beat Rutgers 83-65 and North Carolina took Morgan State 75-61.

Sophomore Jim Barry struck for 28 points in leading Georgetown to a 72-70 victory over New Orleans Loyola, Duquesne whipped Bethany, W.Va. 85-68, Ohio University edged Miami, Ohio 72-67, Dayton beat Xavier 79-63, St. Bonaventure defeated Steubenville 82-76, St. Mary's of California turned back Pepperdine, 84-69 and Loyola of Los Angeles downed the University of Pacific 72-61.

Werkman Still Leading Scorer

NEW YORK (AP)—Nick Werkman missed perhaps the easiest shot of his career against Catholic University last week, but the Seton Hall star still is the leading scorer in major college basketball.

Official statistics released today by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau show Werkman scored 109 points in his four games. This dropped his per game average from 32.8, but he remains No. 1 with 31.1 on 404 points in 13 games. Statistics are based on games through Feb. 5.

Werkman was all alone under the basket against Catholic University when he got the ball for what appeared an easy lay-up. He took his time, but missed.

Barry Kramer of New York University retained second place with a 28.6 average.

Paul Silas of Creighton remained the No. 1 rebounder with 19.5 average per game.

Alma Surprised By Albion; Hope Gets Big Assist

By The Associated Press

Hope got some unexpected help from Albion Wednesday night and lengthened its MIAA basketball league lead to 2½ games.

The Dutchmen easily defeated Olivet 84-53, as expected. But Albion surprised second-place Alma 84-75 in a game that went into two overtimes.

Aquinas nipped Ferris 81-78, and Assumption (Ont.) edged Lawrence Tech 83-82 in other games involving state schools.

Hope and Olivet were nip and tuck through the early moments of their game, with Olivet just four points behind, 24-20, midway in the first half. Hope then went to work and outscored the Comets 17-2 to take a 41-22 halftime advantage.

Hope's Jim VanderHill led all scorers with 23 points, while Jim Everett topped winless Olivet with 13.

Hope is now 8-0 in the conference, 10-6 overall. Olivet is 0-8 in league play, 0-15 overall.

Albion spotted Alma an early lead, went ahead after two minutes, and was never headed.

Ray Moore's basket with 10 seconds remaining pulled Alma into a 65-65 tie and sent the game into overtime.

Albion outscored the Scots 11-2 in the second extra session after each team had scored eight points in the first overtime.

Jerry Chandler scored 27 points, and teammate Emil DeCrazia added 20, to pace Albion. Bud Acton and Morre each had 23 for Alma.

Albion, 3-5 in the MIAA, is 6-10 overall. Alma's record now stands at 5-2 in the league and 9-5 in all games.

Aquinas avenged two earlier losses to Ferris with its tight victory at Grand Rapids.

Ray Bower paced the winners with 24 points, while Bernie Kilpatrick netted 20 for Ferris.

It was the fifth consecutive victory for Aquinas, which now has an 8-4 record.

Bill Kelly's two free throws with 15 seconds remaining gave Assumption its victory over LIT.

Assumption has a 44-35 halftime lead as it posted its 13th victory against three losses. Lawrence Tech is now 10-8.

Top Team Keeps Rating In Poll

By The Associated Press

The Wittenberg University Tigers are the No. 1 small college basketball team for the second straight week in the weekly Associated Press poll.

The Tigers, named Wednesday, promptly responded by displaying their usual ball control tactics in overcoming Akron, the No. 8 ranked team, 41-36 for their 10th straight in a battle of once-beaten teams. Wittenberg's record now is 15-1, Akron's 16-2. The Tigers' only defeat was by Eastern Kentucky, 65-63 in three overtimes.

Wittenberg received six first place votes and an over-all total of 73 points from the eight regional AP board members.

Southeast Missouri, although beaten for the first time this season, moved up to second with 50 points, replacing Grambling of Louisiana. Grambling dropped to fourth with 48 points behind Evansville's third place 49.

The top ten, based on 10 points for first, 9 second, 8 for third, etc. with first place votes and current won and lost records.

Tigers To Open Camp Saturday

DETROIT (AP)—What's in store for the Tigers in 1963? What progress is Frank Lary making toward his comeback? Can Norm Cash regain his batting eye? Will the off-season trades help the Tigers challenge for the pennant?

These are big questions for the upcoming baseball season — and the Tigers will start providing the answers this weekend.

They begin assembling Saturday at Lakeland, Fla., for the Tigers' early camp. Soon the entire squad will be on hand and spring training will be under way for Manager Bob Scheffing's club.

Starting Saturday, Jerry Green, Michigan Associated Press sports editor, will be covering the daily workouts for the Escanaba Daily Press.

Robinson Changes Mind; Signs Pact For Near $60,000

By The Associated Press

Like Popeye, Frank Robinson thrives on the green stuff. For the muscular sailor the magic ingredient is spinach. For the muscular baseball player it all boils down to cabbage.

Robinson was loaded down with cabbage today—the kind with pictures of presidents on it—after officially ending all talk of quitting baseball Wednesday by signing his 1963 contract with the Cincinnati Reds for an estimated $60,000.

If the guess on Robinson's salary figure is correct, he's the highest paid player in Cincinnati history. Also, one of the fastest to change his mind about an early retirement.

Less than five months ago, Robinson wound up the season with the National League's second highest batting average, .342, and the startling announcement that he was quitting because of the "physical beating I've been taking in baseball."

Robinson said he was tired of being hit by pitches, that his back

Eight novice champions were crowned in the 1963 Upper Peninsula Golden Gloves tournament which was completed Saturday night at the Holy Name High School gym. They will form half of the U.P. team that will travel to Green Bay on Feb. 11 to face winners of the Fond du Lac tournament at the Brown County Arena. Open division champions also will compete. ## Titans' Latest Is Bankruptcy

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Titans, plagued with debts and seeking a buyer, have filed a bankruptcy suit but asked permission to continue in operation.

American Football League Commissioner Joe Foss adopted a no comment, wait-and-see position on this latest move by Titan president and principal stockholder Harry Wismer.

Wisner, a controversial figure who has a separate $2.5 million fraud and slander suit pending in another court action in Boston, listed the team's assets at $271,999 and its liabilities at $1,341,000 in the petition filed in Federal District Court Wednesday.

At the same time, however, he said the team has entered into profitable radio and television contracts for the 1963 season which he claimed would result in substantial revenues if the team is allowed to operate.

His attorney, William Richter, said the Titans have asked for an injunction prohibiting the league from any action in connection with the franchise.

Foss said he had no knowledge of the team's request to continue operations, nor had he been served with injunction papers.

Independents Win City League Game

The Independents defeated Herro's Electric 59-52 in City League basketball action Wednesday with Dick Bryson scoring 12 points for the winners. Bob Melchior tallied 15 for the losers.

Ron Grolean hit 13 to lead Taylor Insurance to a 40-39 edge over Jaycees No. 1, paced by Gordon O'Dell's 16 points.

Mueller's Pizza topped Flat Rock 68-54 with Bob Monson scoring 26 for the winners and Wally Slade 27 for the losers.

German Fraulein Has Good Looks And Track Speed

MONTCLAIR, N.J. (AP)—The pretty German fraulein is in an unhappy stew—everybody wants to make her "Miss Cheesecake of 1963" and all she wants to be is Jutta Heine, sportswoman.

"All the time, there are reporters and photographers around wanting to talk and make pictures," Jutta said, puckering her blonde features into an expression of dismay. "It gives me no time to run."

Ask her about her vital statistics and she will quickly say: "My best time in the 200 meters is 23.3 and in the 100—"

No, she is prompted, we mean, you know, 36-24-36 and so forth. "I know," the willowy 22-year-old replies with a sigh of resignation. "It is always the same—people are more interested in how long my legs are than in how fast they run. To me, the only important statistics are my times in the sprints."

Any way you want to take them Jutta's statistics are impressive.

Tall and leggy, she is 5-foot-10 with the face of a cover girl and none of the physical characteristics normally associated with the female athlete, particularly the track and field star.

She is perhaps the second best woman sprinter in the world, giving ground only to Uncle Sam's fabulous Olympic gold medalist, Wilma Rudolph.

Jutta (pronounced U-Ta) was

Plan New Assault On Speed Record

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—An assault on the world land speed record is planned this fall in a small rocket-powered race car.

Romeo Palamides of Oakland, who is building the car that needs wings to keep it on the ground, says, "This is a controlled explosion, a projectile on wheels."

He calls the new project "Mach 1", the scientific designation of the speed of sound—about 760 miles an hour. The present land record is 403.135 m.p.h.

The engine for Mach 1 is out of a surplus space rocket and the car is expected to weigh about 800 pounds. The wings will be short 15-inch stabilizers on each side of a thin, needle-shaped titanium nose cone. They're designed to produce negative lift, forcing the vehicle to hug the ground.

The rocket vehicle, using liquid oxygen and kerosene for fuel, will undergo static tests late this spring in a Southern California desert area.

Pistons Suffer Narrow Defeat

By The Associated Press
The Boston Celtics were quite tame in the National Basketball Association Wednesday night.

Accused of rough play before their game with the Syracuse Nationals, the Celtics took a 126-109 drubbing from the aroused Nats on the Syracuse court.

The San Francisco Warriors edged the Detroit Pistons 117-116 and the Los Angeles Lakers defeated the Chicago Zephyrs 107-105 in the other games scheduled.

The Celtics denied the charge of rough play, made after their victory over Cincinnati Tuesday, and there was only a minor flare-up.

Guy Rodgers' game-winning shot, with two seconds remaining, sent the Pistons down to their fifth straight defeat and lifted the Warriors into sole possession of third place in the NBA's Western Division.

The Pistons led at the end of each period in the game which saw the score tied 16 times.

Wilt Chamberlain and Tom Meschery led the Warriors in the final period, only to see the Pistons storm back as Dave DeBusschere set the pace with three baskets.

The Pistons fought back from a nine point deficit and finally tied the score on a basket by DeBusschere. Bailey Howell's free throw gave the Pistons a 116-115 lead with 23 seconds remaining.

The Warriors, playing for the final shot, got the payoff when Rodgers broke out of the mass of players under the basket and had a clear shot at the bucket.

New Type Racers Enter 500 Classic

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Eight lightweight rear-engine cars, the type that has been winning European road races but is a novelty at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, were entered today for the 47th 500-mile race May 30.

Frick Has Plan For Inter-Loop Baseball Slate

NEW YORK (AP)—If Commissioner Ford Frick had his way, the major leagues would unveil the most intriguing and revolutionary playing schedule in baseball's long history in 1963.

Frick's plan, accepted by the American League but rejected by the National League at its summer meeting in Chicago following the second All-Star game, was an interlocking schedule in which all 20 clubs could be seen in every big league city.

The proposed arrangements were veiled in such secrecy that few authoritative persons will discuss it even now, least of all Frick.

Under the proposed plan, the playing schedule would be reduced from 162 to 157 games, which would tend to cut down travel, eliminate some of the day-night doubleheaders, the players' chief complaint.

An American League official, who favored the commissioner's plan, had this to say:

"It's too bad the National League killed it. The commissioner showed far-sightedness and progressive thinking. I think the interlocking schedule idea is in-

Welfare Costs Cut; Fire Truck Part Of Deficit

The budget of Schoolcraft County was exceeded by $10,012.26 in 1962, according to the annual report submitted to the Board of Supervisors. The budget appropriations totaled $130,600.

Various departments had fund balances totaling $9,536.68 while others had overdrafts of $19,548.68.

Those with expenses above budget were: board of supervisors $76, Circuit Court, $422, elections, $557, civil defense, $406, Justice Court, $247, county extension, $1, county fire truck (new unit purchased) $13,202, insurance, $773, sheriff's department, $2,907, Social Security, $168, county tax department, $788.

Though the budget was overdrawn the past year, the county finance picture is a brightening one, as $6,500 of the deficit reflects payment on a new county fire truck. The budget for the coming year contains another $10,000 for it, $5,000 in the fire truck account and $5,000 in the general fund.

To pay for the truck, which has no outstanding debt on it, the county used $5,500 from the tax writing account and received $1,000 from Mueller Township for old fire hose. Including the $10,000 in next year's appropriation, the county has $17,500 deficit on the truck purchase.

Also a bright factor in the report is a reduction of welfare cost from $62,000 last year to $48,500 this year.

Veteran Benefits Are Outlined

The Soldiers' and Sailors' Relief Commission disbursed $1,144.92 during the 1962 year and Jan. 1 had a balance on hand of $83.21, according to the annual report submitted to the Board of Supervisors. The Commission received 104 applications for aid, of which 61 were approved.

The Veterans Counselor report showed 816 contacts made and 482 letters written. During the year, 836 veterans were hospitalized for 836 patient days with average cost per patient day $20. Thus the value of the hospitalization obtained was $16,720, excluding transportation, which averages $850 a year.

Twenty-nine veterans were assisted in applying to local doctors and dentists for out-patient treatment for which the VA paid. Estimated value of drugs obtained under the program was $2,000.

Seventeen veterans were awarded pensions during the year with the amount varying from $40 to $85. The yearly total was $12,825, with a total of $4,184 in back pay.

Six widows were awarded pensions of $60 per month or a total of $3,845 with back pay of $1,238. Fourteen children were awarded pensions totaling $2,974 with back pay of $836. One hundred-twenty-eight veterans applied to the Michigan Veterans' Trust fund for emergency aid with $2,897 expended for them. One hundred-forty-eight other services were rendered.

The total cash benefits were estimated at $28,826. Expenses of the local counselor office totaled $1,681.84.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) has ordered a delay in the effectiveness of its Dec. 18 order authorizing the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad to acquire control of the Ann Arbor Railroad. The association, which opposed the control plan at hearings held by an ICC examiner last year, has asked the commission to reconsider the approval granted by a three-member division of the 11-member ICC.

The order also covered the Ann Arbor's wholly owned subsidiary, the Manistique & Lake Superior Railroad. Ann Arbor and Manistique are member corporations of the Pennsylvania Railroad System.
